Dr. Schweitzer Is Near Death

LAMBARENE, Gabon (UPI) —Dr. Albert Schweitzer, 90-year old philosopher - humanitarian, was reported near death today in the hospital he founded in the hungles of Gabon more than 50 years ago.

A spokesman at the hospital this morning said death was likely to be only a matter of hours.

Schweitzer, who was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1952, celebrated his 90th birthday last Jan. 14. He has been known to be in failing health for some months.

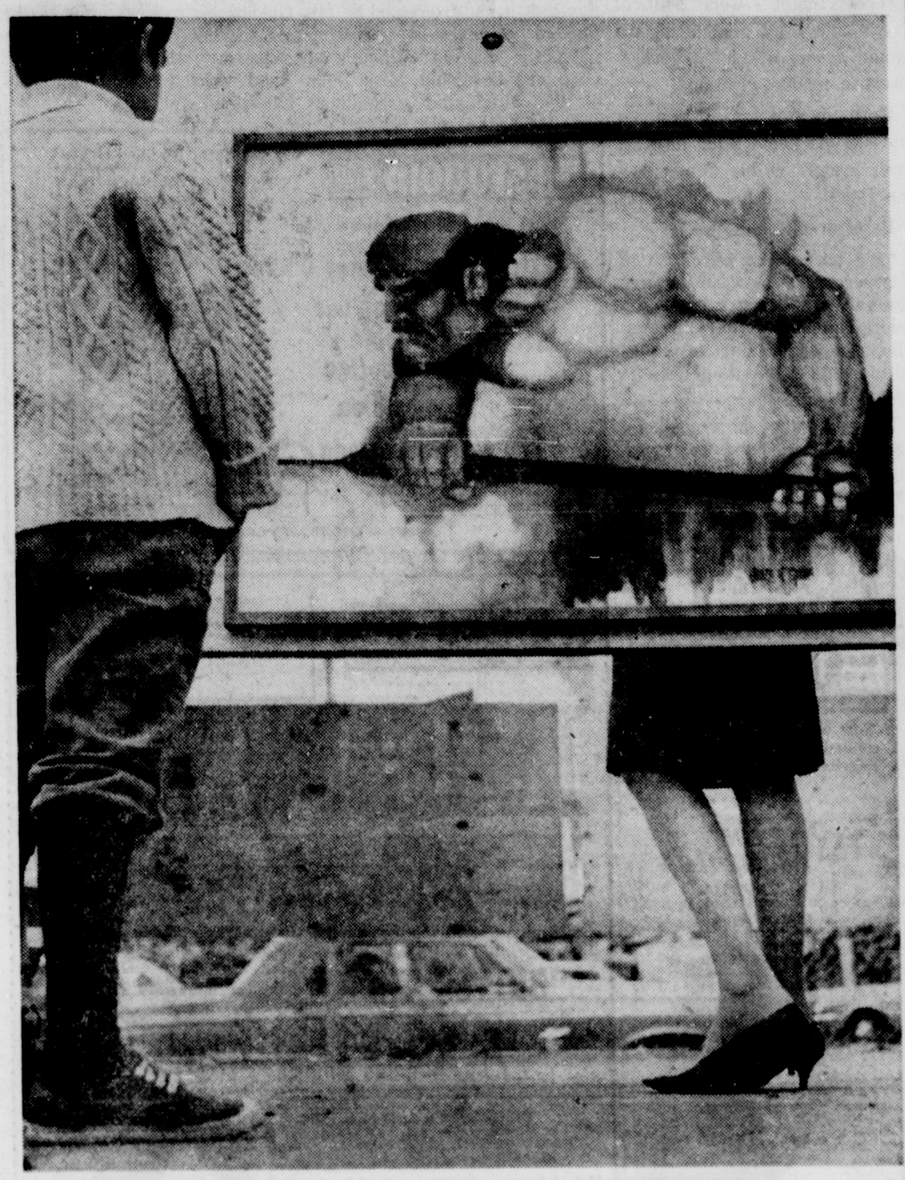
Early this week, a hospital spokesman disclosed that Schweitzer had been confined to his bed for about a week. Since then he had alternated between consciousness and coma.

The exact nature of his ailment was not immediately disclosed. However, Dr. David Miller, an internist and heart specialist from King City, Calif., was reported to have arrived at the hospital here yesterday. Miller spent six months working in Schweitzer's hospital in 1960. His family said they were close friends.

Friends of Schweitzer called him the greatest humanitarian of his time, one who never refused to help his fellow man.

In 1913, he turned his back on a career as a theologian, musician and philosopher to work with his young wife at a leper colony in the steamy jungles of French Equatorial Africa. His wife, Helene, died in 1957 at the age of 75.

Schweitzer built a medical compound, beyond the edge of civilization, with his own hands. He later founded the hospital which has been in operation ever since.



THREE DIMENSIONAL PAINTING?

Robin Rosenberg of 546 Sausalito Boulevard was startled today at the opening of the three-day Sausalito Art Fair to see a pair of legs seemingly growing out of this painting, "The Whaler," an oil by George Gooding of Sausalito. Actually, the legs belonged to Diane Smith of San Rafael, who was admiring a painting on the other side. The show, at Central School, will be open to 6 p.m. today, from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. tomorrow, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday. (Independent-Journal photo)

Guam Planes Again Strike N. Viet Nam

SAIGON (UPI) — Strategic Air Command (SAC) B52 bombers from Guam today made their 18th strike of the war in South Viet Nam. Other U. S. planes attacked Communist North Viet Nam and one, an Air Force F4C, apparently was shot down.

It was announced that in other action South Vietnamese forces striking by air, land and river killed at least 53 Communist Viet Cong guerrillas and captured 24 in a 24-hour battle that ended today.

LOCATION OF RAID

A U.S. military spokesman said the B52s attacked a suspected Viet Cong area in Quang Tin Province, 320 miles northeast of Saigon. There were no immediate results of the raid and the number of B52s participating was not disclosed.

U.S. military headquarters in Saigon said American military advisers with the South Vietnamese troops attacking Communist concentrations 75 miles southwest of Saigon believed the figure of 53 Reds killed was conservative.

Over North Viet Nam, two U.S. B57 bombers cratered the northern approach to a ferry crossing on Route 1, 85 miles southeast of Vinh.

In South Viet Nam, U.S. Navy, Air Force, Marine and Vietnamese planes destroyed or damaged more than 390 buildings in more than 275 sorties flown in the 24 hour period ending at 6 a.m. today.

NEW DECREE

In Saigon, the ruling military junta tightened its rein on civilians with a decree that bans strikes, permits search and seizure and allows press censorship in any designated military area.

The official Vietnamese press agency published particulars of a decree which Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu signed Aug. 31.

The effect of the decree is similar to martial law. It provides for deportation of undesirables, day or night search of private homes, control of all forms of communication and traffic, a ban on demonstrations and control of food distribution.

Negotiators Put Final Touches To Steel Pact

Pressure Averts Strike

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Steel negotiators, successful in reaching a strike-averting agreement under pressure from President Johnson, moved today from the capital to the industry's heartland to put the finishing touches on the settlement.

"We will have a session to come up with a memorandum of understanding," said I. W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers Union (USW).

The accord, reached after five days of negotiating under relentless White House pressure, ended the threat of a nationwide strike set for midnight Wednesday. It is expected to be ratified when submitted tomorrow to the USW's Wage Policy Committee.

JOHNSON TALKS

Johnson told the nation of the agreement last night in a radio and television address.

"The settlement is a fair one," he said. "It is designed to prevent the inflation which would damage our prosperity. It is also within the guiding spirit of free collective bargaining."

The pact will run until Aug. 1, 1968. Its cost was not announced. The best estimate was that it was worth 46.2 cents per manhour, about halfway between the 53.7 cents demanded by the union and the 40.6 cents offered by the industry when negotiations shifted to Washington last Monday upon Johnson's request.

FRINGE BENEFITS

Steelworkers now earn an average of $4.40 an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

Knowledgeable government officials said the contract fell within the administration's 3.2 per cent guideline for non-inflationary wage or price increases

SPORTS EVENTS TODAY

Native Sons, Daughters Start State's Birthday Celebration

Two sports events today launched five days of activity in Marin by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, whose celebration of California's 115th birthday is being held in San Rafael.

Climax of the activities will be their annual Admission Day parade, which will travel through the streets of San Rafael Thursday. The theme is "Mission Trails 1769-1965."

Starting today were an invitational soft ball tournament, to run through Labor Day at Albert Field and the Native Sons' 20th annual bowling tournament which will conclude tomorrow at Nave Lanes, Ignacio.

Wednesday, an Admission Day dinner rance will be held at Dominic's Restaurant, San Rafael. Immediately following Thursday's parade, a barbecue is scheduled at the Marist Fathers Seminary, Linden Lane and Grand Avenue, San Rafael.

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce is scheduling many of its Fall Festival events this year to coincide with Admission Day activities.

Many shops will remain open from 7 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. for a "Moonlight Sale" Tuesday and members of the chamber will be among the 5,000 people expected to take part in the parade Thursday.

Five amateur jazz combos will play from 9 p.m. to midnight on the courthouse lawn Friday.

Next Saturday, the San Rafael Junior Chamber of Commerce and the San Rafael chamber will hold a barbecue from 12 noon to 2 p.m. at the courthouse parking lot.

Heavy Labor Weekend Traffic Building Up

There was heavy Labor Day weekend traffic through San Rafael last night, but no slowups to compare with a monumental jam that tied up the area for several hours Thursday.

The California Highway Patrol said no serious traffic problems were anticipated in Marin today, but warned that Thursday's jam-up on Highway 101 might be repeated Monday when weekend travelers return home.

Traffic moved slowly along Highway 101 during yesterday's evening commuting hours with the normally heavy flow swelled by northbound holiday motorists.

Irwin Street, Grand Avenue and Lincoln Avenue, which were clogged Thursday, were crowded, but for the most part traffic was moving.

Lt. William H. Porter of the California Highway Patrol described early evening traffic as "extremely heavy," and reported that the CHP "had all its equipment on the road."

He attributed the Thursday tie-up to a combination of unusually heavy Thursday traffic and a rash of accidents along 101 in the San Rafael area.

First accident was on California Hill, while two were in San Rafael, Porter said. Also, San Rafael police reported five accidents in San Rafael proper.

Two construction projects also contributed to the traffic snarl; the Second Street extension was closed off and there was dust on Puerto Suello Hill from the state project which slowed traffic, he said.

Negro Blasts White Right In Natchez

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) — Armed National Guardsmen patrolled this outwardly calm city today, enforcing what a Negro leader called a "white man's peace."

The Rev. Andrew Young, here for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., told a shrieking rally of 500 Negroes last night that the guardsmen were sent "to keep us in our place."

"They're all white and ain't none of them right," he cried. The jib was a play on a common Mississippi expression among segregationists, who describe themselves as "white and right."

Noting that Negro and white populations are almost equal here, Young told the group, "You're going to have to live together. We can't kill them off, and they can't kill us off, either."

Santa Venetia Super Market Safe Stolen

A safe which may have contained as much as $6,000 in cash and checks was stolen from the Littleman Super Market at 750 Adrian Way, Santa Venetia, last night.

The safe, which held the entire receipts from sales in the store Friday, was hauled away by someone who left no signs of breaking into the building. Sheriff's deputy Hillary C. Lannen said the thieves must have hidden in the store before it closed at 10 p.m.

Store manager Lloyd B. Wheat, 45, declined to give an estimate of the amount stolen but said it was "a goodly sum."

The burglary was discovered at 7:20 a.m. today when Russell Gillmore, head of the store's produce department, came to work and found the store's rear door open.

Wheat said he was in the store at closing time and a routine check was made to see if anyone was inside, but no one was spotted.

Quake Shakes Alaska Area

BERKELEY (AP)—An earthquake shook the Alaskan area at 7:38 a.m. today, the University of California reported.

Seismologist C. Lomnitz said the Air Force telephoned from Kodiak that the quake was felt there.

"I also understand it was felt in Anchorage," Lomnitz said.

He gave it a Richter rating of 6.75, on a scale which measures earthquakes by the energy released.

Minor Injuries In Plane Crash

Three members of a Novato family suffered minor injuries yesterday when their light plane overturned while making a forced landing in a remote New Mexico ranch field.

Police at Ramah, near Grants, N.M., said a Piper Tri-Pacer piloted by Otto Gramlich of 831 Reichert Avenue, Novato, rolled over when it was forced to land with engine trouble.

Gramlich, owner of Accurate T.V. and Electronics Repair, 9 Throckmorton Avenue, Mill Valley, was flying to his Novato home with his wife and son, Daniel, 18, after visiting friends in Albuquerque.

Grass Fire Snuffed Out With Milk

Truck driver Gregory Brackett fought a grass fire yesterday with the only weapon he had — milk.

He came across the outbreak as he drove his milk truck along the Point Reyes-Petaluma road near Red Hill. As the fire swept along, he jumped from his cab, grabbed a hose pipe from the truck and gave the fire a 30-gallon burst of the white liquid.

The fire was almost out by the time Marin County firemen arrived on the scene. Without even giving them his name, Brackett, employed by Petaluma Cooperative Creamery, got back in his truck and drove off.

Today he was finally traced by a county fire officer who told the Independent-Journal: "If Brackett hadn't been around with the milk, we might have had a hard job containing the fire."

An area about 100 by 20 foot was burned. There was no property damage.

Envoy Aide Chosen

JOHNSON CITY, Texas (AP)— President Johnson announced today he will name diplomat William J. Porter as deputy ambassador to South Viet Nam. Porter is the hand-picked choice of Ambassadar Henry Cabot Lodge.

Fracas In Marin City Brings In The Police

Fearful of an outbreak of racial trouble, Marin County Sheriff's deputies last night called in highway patrolmen and two other police departments after shots were fired during a quarrel at a party in Marin City.

About 40 persons gathered at the scene and threw rocks and bottles at a patrol car, but left when other cars arrived.

"If it hadn't been for the riots in Watts we probably wouldn't have alerted half that many men," said Sergeant Guy V. Gibbs of the Sheriff's department.

The Mill Valley and Sausalito police departments had several cruisers at their city limits, ready to go to Marin City if called, said Gibbs.

The melee began at 2:45 a.m. at 89 Cole Drive when an anonymous caller reported a fight at the party. Two deputies were sent to the scene and were told by an unidentified woman that someone had been "shooting holes" in her apartment. They found several gunshot holes in the house when someone yelled: "There he goes!" and the deputies saw a man run up the hill behind the house, reported Gibbs.

"A crowd of some 35 or 40 people living in the area began to collect at the scene and the deputies called for help when they could not disperse them," said Gibbs.

"They started throwing rocks and bottles at the patrol car," he said. Six more men were sent in to assist in dispersing the crowd, while the other law enforcement agencies were alerted, according to Gibbs.

Three units from the California Highway Patrol arrived on the scene but left when they found it under control, reported Sergeant S. C. Dukes.

"That area couldn't get as bad as Watts because it isn't as big," said Gibbs of the Sheriff's department. "But there's no getting around the fact that the nature of the area is the same and that something of the same kind could happen there," he said.

Recognition Given

JOHNSON CITY, Texas (AP)— The United States today extended recognition to the new provisional government of the Dominican Republic and, said President Johnson, looks forward to "a bright future" for the previously embattled island.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

SIX KILLED—This is the wreckage of the auto in which six died yesterday when it struck another car near Fresno. (UPI Telephoto)

Six Die In Valley Smash-Up

FRESNO (AP)—A California soldier and five members of his family were killed and three other persons injured yesterday in a two-car accident near Fowler, a small town about 10 miles southeast of Fresno.

The highway patrol said 26-year-old Pablo Torres of Sanger, who recently returned from duty in Germany, apparently ran a stop sign and struck a car driven by Charles William Chandler of Selma.

Torres, his wife Rosa, also 26; two sons, Pablo Jr., 7, and Guillermo, 4; his mother, Petra, 50, and a nephew, Perfecto Castillo Jr., 2, were killed.

Torres' 2-year-old son, Moise, and his 16-year-old brother, Blas, were injured, but were in fair condition.

New Dominican Chief Takes Over

SANTO DOMINGO (UPI)—Hector Garcia-Godoy was installed as provincial president of the revolt-torn Dominican Republic late yesterday while gunfire echoed through the streets outside.

Garcia-Godoy

In the pre-dawn darkness less than 18 hours before Garcia's inauguration, a U. S. soldier was killed by a hand grenade thrown into an American command post. He was the 28th U. S. serviceman killed since American troops moved in four months ago to prevent a Cuba-style Communist take-over here.

The leftist rebels who held a square mile of downtown Santo Domingo throughout the revolt played a prominent part in Garcia's installation.

Hurricane Menaces Carolinas

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Betsy raged on toward the coasts of the Carolinas today and chased small craft into port over a 500-mile eastern seaboard stretch from Cape Kennedy to Cape Hatteras.

The Miami Weather Bureau said it was preparing to post a hurricane watch along portions of the North and South Carolina coasts. A "watch" is an alert preliminary to actual hurricane warnings.

A hurricane hunter pilot who rode a bucking plane through the storm most of the night reported that Betsy's highest winds of 125 miles an hour were whipping around a well-defined eye 35 miles in diameter.

Germans Flee

MUNICH (UPI)—Five East German men fled across Communist mine fields into West Germany in the past two days, the Bavarian Interior Ministry announced today.

Woodside, AEC Reach Compromise

WOODSIDE (AP) — The City of Woodside and the Atomic Energy Commission have reached a compromise on the controversial overhead power line to the $114 million Stanford Linera Accelerator.

City leaders and AEC representatives yesterday announced their agreement following an open meeting.

They said the power line — which Woodside residents wanted placed underground to preserve the community's scenic beauty—will be put on existing power line routes.

The line will go on above - ground high voltage lines, but the 22,000-volt line will be torn down within five years and placed underground, AEC officials said.

New Student Rules Are Set Up At U.C.

BERKELEY (AP)—New regulations granting increased rights of speech and political advocacy to students at the University of California's Berkeley campus will go into effect Sept. 16.

The new rules, announced by Executive Vice Chancellor Earl Cheit yesterday, are designed to avoid campus turmoil.

They should lay to rest, Cheit added, the controversy over whether U.C.'s policies are overly restrictive.

The new rules will allow students to promote off-campus political activity and distribute political literature at eight campus locations, said Cheit.

The rules also spell out the rights of students who become subject to university discipline.

These students may request a public hearing to be presided over by an impartial hearing officer selected by the chancellor from a panel of members picked by the academic senate.

Students also may appear before the officer with an attorney or "other advisor."

Among the new regulations is one requiring the filing at the end of each semester statements by all student organizations giving an account of their fund raising methods and the principal uses of their funds.

Door's Open For Ending Greece Crisis

ATHENS (AP)—Former Premier George Papandreou opened the way for solution of Greece's eight - week political crisis today by announcing he would accept a rightist government to conduct elections.

He made a statement to newsmen at his home after meeting with leaders of his Center Union Party.

Papandreou said:

"We accept the formation of a government from the National Radical Union under the premiership of Mr. Panayiotis Canellopoulos to conduct elections within the constitutional limits of 45 days."

Papandreou's announcement came while the king was meeting with caretaker Premier Elias Tsirimokos at the royal palace.

President Lines To Add A Ship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — American President Lines and the federal Maritime Administration have added a fifth ship to their order of a fleet of the largest and fastest general cargo ships in the world.

The shipping line said yesterday that it had exercized an option to purchase a fifth ship from the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. of Pascagoula, Miss. Four of the automated cargoliners were ordered Dec. 31, 1964.

The ships were scheduled for delivery to APL by mid-1968. They represent a $68 million ship replacement program for the shipping line.

DEATH WAS CHEATED HERE

William Moran, 18, of 73 Vallejo Way, San Rafael, was thrown headfirst through this windshield, up to his shoulders early today—but was later listed in good condition at Marin General Hospital with cuts on his face, neck and right hand. San Rafael police said Moran, traveling west on Third Street at 2:30 a.m., was hit broadside on Lincoln Avenue by the southbound car of Luis V. Soto of San Francisco. Soto said Moran failed to stop for a flashing red light. Officer David H. Jones (foreground) and an unidentified officer examine Moran's car.

Youths Held For Taking $250 In Tools

San Anselmo police yesterday arrested two youths they said had stolen $250 worth of tools from a construction shack at Sir Francis Drake High School Thursday night.

Police said they captured the two after picking up a 13-year-old boy who ran away from his San Anselmo home and spent Thursday night at the high school. He admitted witnessing the crime, officers said.

Police passed on the youth's description of the burglars and their car to persons living near the high school. Last night they received a call that two boys in a car matching the description were at the school.

Booked at county jail on a charge of burglary was Bruce Irwin Bowler, 18, of 66 Crooked Avenue, San Anselmo. A 17-year-old Fairfax boy was booked at juvenile hall on charges of burglary and curfew violation.

Police said Bowles admitted taking part in the theft, then led them to the spot where the tools were hidden. He refused to identify any accomplices in the crime, however.

The tools belong to the Dill and Sederberg construction company of Mill Valley.

STEEL

—a major goal of the President.

They said there was no commitment by management not to raise steel prices but it was felt there would be no increase.

In addition to compromising their money positions, the two sides gave a little on the effective date of the contract. The union had wanted it retroactive to May 1; the industry said Sept. 1.

Johnson was accompanied by Abel and U.S. Steel Vice President R. Conrad Cooper, chief spokesman for the "Big 10" basic steel firms, when he reported the agreement.

"All America is grateful to these men you see beside me," he said. "They put the interest of the nation first. To them, the welfare of the American people —the needs of freedom in Viet Nam and in every continent — took precedence over any other consideration or interest or desire.

"The American nation has won," the President added with pride. "I now believe that most Americans share my own belief that cooperation and mutual respect will bring greater rewards than unreasoning hostility and distrust."

OBITUARIES

Dr. Martha Allen Dies In Nevada

The private funeral for Dr. Martha E. Allen, general practitioner, former Fairfax health officer and the town's Senior Citizen for 1965, will be held at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo, Wednesday. Burial will be private.

Dr. Allen, who was 76, died Thursday in a Reno, Nev., hospital after becoming ill while visiting a daughter who lives there. She was a native of Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Since coming to Fairfax with her late husband in August, 1921, Dr. Allen lived and practiced at 35 Sequoia Road.

She was health officer in Fairfax for many years and was also the first woman to be elected to the Fairfax School District board. At the time of her death she was the town's deputy civil defense physician.

In June, Dr. Allen was nominated the town's senior citizen by the Fairfax Women's Club.

Before coming to Marin, she lived in southern California where she was graduated from the University of Southern Califoria in 1918. She once said that in her early days in Fairfax, as an obstetrician, she "delivered most of the town."

A long-time member of the Fairfax Women's Club, Dr. Allen was also a member of the American Medical Association and Marin Medical Society.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Louis Stopper of Reno; a son, John W. Allen of Portland, Ore.; eight grandchildren and a great-grandson.

Elevator Traps Two Sausalitans As Power Fails

Two men were trapped for nearly an hour in separate elevators at the Ardilla Apartments, 35 Rodeo Avenue, Sausalito, yesterday during a power blackout effecting 750 homes and businesses in the area.

The electricity failure was caused by a moving van which jolted a pole at 1721 Bridgeway causing a 4,000 volt power line to short.

The accident occurred at 3:51 p.m. and the power supply was resumed by 4:48 p.m., Leonard O. Robertson, electrical superintendent of Pacific Gas & Electric Co., said today.

At the apartment building, two elevators stuck between floors. Firemen worked for nearly an hour before the hydraulic pressure could be released and the elevators lowered to the ground.

Youth Booked

San Rafael police booked Martin Price McDowell, 18, of 355 Canal Street, San Rafael, in county jail early today. Officer David H. Jones said he observed McDowell strike and knock to the pavement Gary R. Love, 20, of 52 Harte Avenue, San Rafael, at the corner of Third Street and Lincoln Avenue.

U.N. Awaits India Reply To Appeal

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

India today readied its response to the United Nations appeal for a halt in the undeclared border war against Pakistan in the disputed state of Kashmir. In the background was an ominous hint that India might not consider the U.N. appeal sufficient cause to call off hostilities.

Indian military officials in New Delhi yesterday reported a favorable turn in the fighting. They said Pakistan's major drive into the Chamb area of Kashmir was blunted and claimed Indian forces punched a mile farther into the Pakistan-controlled portion of the state in the Tithwal sector to the north.

But there were unconfirmed reports of a military buildup in east Pakistan, 900 miles across India to the east, and jet fighter planes of both nations clashed in the skies over Kashmir for the third consecutive day.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, in his first nationwide broadcast since open hostilities flares on Wednesday, warned India it "may have to suffer damage from air raids."

He said India's reply to U.N. Secretary General Thant would be made "shortly."

"Those who want peace will always have our support and cooperation," the prime minister said. But he added:

"We must face the realities of the situation. A cease-fire is not peace. We simply can't go on from one cease-fire to another and wait until Pakistan chooses to start hostilities again."

In Fair Condition

Richard E. Beesley, 33, of El Cerrito, was in fair condition today in Marin General Hospital, where he was being treated for cuts, fractured ribs and a broken wrist suffered in an accident on the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge.

9:49 p.m., Marinwood—Faulty wiring caused fire in dishwasher at 2742 Heatherstone Drive; minor damage.

Trailer Manufacturer's Widow Is Found Dead

Estelle Hall Byam, 61, widow of trailer manufacturer Wallace Byam, apparently took her own life in a motel north of Novato yesterday.

Her late husband, Wallace Byam, owned Airstream Trailers Co.

County Coroner Frank J. Keaton said Mrs. Byam, who made her home in South Laguna, Orange County, was found dead in a room of the Lodge Motel by her chauffeur, Bruno Hans Block.

Keaton termed the cause of death as "apparently due to an overdose of barbituates" and said several empty pill bottles were found nearby.

He said she left notes to her chauffeur and her son, John Hall Byam of South Laguna, asking forgiveness and indicating the funeral arrangements she wished made.

Mrs. Byam was traveling through northern California with a car and trailer. Block told the coroner she had been staying in the trailer while he took rooms in various motels.

Block said at 8 a.m. Mrs. Byam asked him to drive to Santa Cruz and arrange for their next stop. He found her body on the bed in his room when he returned at 3 p.m.

Keaton said today Mrs. Byam had been in ill heaith for some time "and the thought of not being able to be completely well was apparently her reason."

One of Mrs. Byam's notes, according to Keaton, asked that she be cremated and her remains be placed next to her husband in Forrest Lawn Cemetery in Los Angeles.

Along with her son, she is survived by a sister, Gertrude Asky, of Illinois. Her body was taken to Redwood Chapel in Novato.

Passenger Service Hearing Is Slated

The California Public Utilities Commission today ordered an investigation to determine whether the failure of Northwestern Pacific Railroad to furnish passenger service between Willits and Eureka is reasonable, and whether the railroad should be ordered to resume "reasonable passenger service between said points."

Public hearing in the investigation has been scheduled to open Sept. 17 in Eureka.

Out Of Hospital

Zannie L. Aubrey, 29, of Oakland, was released from Marin General Hospital yesterday. He suffered head injuries, cuts and bruises in an auto accident on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at White's Hill near Fairfax Thursday.

No Meeting

There will be no meeting of Mill Valley Chamber of Commerce directors Wednesday because the chamber is sponsoring a welcome luncheon for new teachers at noon that day at Sabella's restaurant, Alto. Next board meeting will be Sept. 15.

King Arthur supposedly held tournaments near the site of Westminster Abbey.

Sharing Proposal Held Approved For Newspapers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Justice Department's antitrust division has decided not to oppose a proposed cost-sharing combination among San Francisco's three major daily newspapers, the New York Times reported today.

The Times' Washington dispatch said:

"Sources in the department confirmed . . . that Donald F. Turner, assistant attorney general in charge of the division, had approved a letter informing the papers that the government would not bring suit if they proceeded with their combination plans."

The newspapers are the two Hearst dailies, the Examiner and the News-Call Bulletin and the Chronicle, which is an independent morning paper.

Nixon Visits U.S. Troops

DA NANG, Viet Nam (AP)— Richard M. Nixon made a whirlwind tour of U.S. Marine installations in the Da Nang area today.

Four Marines at Chu Lai lunched with the former Republican vice president. One made a remark that brought a wide grin from Nixon.

Nixon asked the four their ages, hometowns and what moved them to join the Marines.

When he asked Pfc. David Kirk of Houston, Tex., how old he was, Kirk replied: "20." Then Kirk added: "We'll be there for the next election."

Fist-Fight Injury

David Clayton Marshall, 15, of 101 Nova Albion Way, Apt. 5, San Rafael, was in good condition today at Marin General Hospital. San Rafael police said he suffered a concussion in a fist-fight over a girl friend with a 15-year-old Ignacio boy yesterday.

Sentencing Due In Fraud Case

A Marin Superior Court jury late yesterday found Thomas Dean Scahill, 21, guilty of a charge of disposing of stolen property with intent to defraud an insurance company.

The trial before Judge Thomas F. Keating started Tuesday.

Scahill, of 131 Bolinas Road, Fairfax, allegedly had taken a friend's auto transmission with a plan that the friend, Gregory Malcomb Lamb, 18, of 2242 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, would then collect the insurance.

The latter was fined $110 in Marin Municipal Court for making a false report.

Attorney for Scahill was W. Otto Weissich of San Rafael. Leonard Shaw, assistant district attorney, prosecuted.

Judgement is scheduled Nov. 2.

Hearing Is Set In Assault Case

Preliminary hearing for Peter R. Black, 29, charged with assault on his former wife with a deadly weapon — a car — was scheduled yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for 10 a.m., Sept. 28.

A second charge, misdemeanor hit-run, will be a court trial which will follow the felony matter.

Black, an unemployed used car salesman residing at 1052 Redwood Highway, Mill Valley, allegedly sideswiped his automobile against one driven by Mrs. Beverly Black, 27, of 4 Carroll Court, Tiburon, on Waldo Grade of Highway 101 last Sunday.

The accident involved two other vehicles, according to California Highway Patrol. Black allegedly departed the scene, but surrendered himself Monday. He is free on his own recognizance.

Pedestrian Still In Poor Condition

Danny W. Adams, 21, of Fowler, Fresno County, was listed in poor condition today at Marin General Hospital.

He suffered fractures of both legs, his skull, ribs and his right wrist, plus internal injuries, when he was hit by a car Thursday while crossing Highway 101 at the Lincoln Avenue overpass.

Wolden Shuns Mayor's Plea To Take Leave

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco Assessor Russell L. Wolden has rejected a suggestion by Mayor John F. Shelley that he take a voluntary leave of absence until his trial on 10 criminal counts.

The assessor, who was indicted Thursday on nine counts of bribery and one on conspiracy, said yesterday: "In our United States of America, a man is innocent until proven guilty. I do not think anybody would seriously contend I'm guilty of anything. I know I'm not."

Wolden was arraigned yesterday before Superior Judge Norman Elkington. His lawyer, James MacInnis, said Wolden would not enter a plea until next Friday, when the Grand Jury's transcript of its hearing in the case is ready.

Arson Attempts Do Little Damage In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Four separate arson incidents were reported early today in the south Los Angeles riot area, but caused little damage, authorities said.

Police said a Molotov cocktail was hurled into the yard of a construction firm about 1 a.m.

A short time later, another Molotov cocktail was thrown at the rear of a Compton market but the blaze was knocked down before it could spread by two patrolmen who were driving past.

Elsewhere, a 15-year-old unidentified boy was booked for arson after he allegedly threw a Molotov cocktail at a passing car on Central Avenue.

Police said that three flaming bottles of gasoline were tossed in a yard of a residence but no damage was reported.

SEW SIMPLE

Velvet Popular For Fall: Don't Be Afraid To Use It

By EUNICE FARMER

My daughter is planning a late fall wedding and would like to wear velvet. Since I have never sewed on velvet, would you please give some information on linings and just plain handling?

MRS. M. H. K.

DEAR MRS. M. H. K.

Since velvet will be more popular than ever this fall, your question is very timely and I am hoping all of you will clip this column for future reference. These same instructions will hold good whether you are simply making a collar, trim, or a complete velvet garment.

All pieces of your garment must be cut in the same direction, against the nap. Use fine silk pins, however, remove them before stitching as they would leave a mark. Facings may be cut out of matching taffeta to eliminate bulk.

A velvet garment is generally not lined unless you need the lining for shaping. If you do, use either a woven or unwoven interfacing. The weight would depend on the type skirt you are making. By all means use interfacing for the necklines, jacket fronts, collars, etc.

Machine stitching works best if you use 10 to 12 stitches per inch. Also, raise the presser foot slightly to release the pressure. If you have trouble with the top layer shifting as you stitch, ease or push it back as you stitch, using small closed scissors or a long sturdy pin. If you have a zig-zag machine, baste with the longest and widest stitch. When sewing the seam permanently, reverse the fabric and your seams should be perfect.

Pink the seams or hand-overcast. A needle board is best for pressing velvet; however if none is available, use Mrs. I.M.'s suggestion about pressing over another piece of velvet.

Remember that velvet must be steamed, not ironed. After a thorough steaming, immediately pat hems, seams, or facings firmly with a stiff brush. This will give the desired flat edges without any press marks.

Velvet is flattering, the colors are exciting, and it's so very new this year, so please don't be afraid of it.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. Irma Mannello, Waterbury, Conn. is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following suggestion.

"If you don't want to invest in a 'velvet board' for pressing velvets, pin a piece of scrap velvet, nap side up, on your ironing board. Place right side of garment so that it is facing the velvet on the board and lightly press with a steam iron. Use plenty of steam and very little pressure, it works beautifully!"

When I line shorts or skirts, the lining seems to buckle after I make the hem. In other words, the lining seems to be too short. Please help!

MRS. A. C.

DEAR MRS. A. C.:

Before you finish the hem, push a slight amount of lining up from the edge and baste it in place about 6 inches above the hem. Next, baste the lining to your garment exactly where it will be turned up, on the fold line. Now continue with the hem. This slight amount of ease will keep the lining from being too tight and pulling.

Jeffrey I. Black To Claim Bride In Eastern Ceremony

Planning to wed on Sept. 11 are Barbara Joan Murray and Jeffrey Ives Black of San Rafael.

BARBARA MURRAY

The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Murray of Medford, Mass. She was graduated from Medford High School and attended Chandler's College for Women. She is employed with Trans World Airlines in Los Angeles.

The future bridegroom, son of Mrs. Edgar B. Black Jr. of San Rafael and the late Mr. Black, was graduated from Tamalpais High School and attended El Camino College. He is also associated with TWA in Los Angeles. Mrs. Russell Ford of Fairfax, Laura Black of San Rafael, and Eric Black of Fairfax are his sisters and brother.

The wedding will take place in Medford.

THE FUN-LOVING SEA HORSE

In the land of Lucas Valley there once lived a very playful sea horse. He loved to climb the enormous oak trees, skip along the quiet stream, or gaily bounce over the rolling hills. But one thing was missing. The sea horse had no place to swim. "Sea horses need a pool to really have fun," he said. When Mr. Eichler heard about this he made a decision. "Lucas Valley will have a complete recreation center," he said. "There will be a community center, children's play areas, adequate parking, and, most important, a huge Olympic-size swimming pool." So the work began. And on the day everything was finished, Mr. Eichler went to see it. There, right in the center of the pool, sat a very happy and contented sea horse. "Mr. Eichler," he smiled, "may I give you a ride?"

Grace Fraser Bride Of Lt. Mark E. Cory

In a ceremony on Aug. 7 at the Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin in San Francisco, Grace Elizabeth Fraser became the bride of Lt. Mark Ensign Cory III of Novato.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. William Burns Fraser of San Francisco.

The Rev. Keppel W. Hill officiated for the noon double ring ceremony.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of white silk organza. The chapel train was trimmed with Brussels lace.

Mrs. Walter S. Levison of Belvedere, matron of honor for her sister, and Marcia Johnson of Ojai, bridesmaid, wore full length gowns of mint green organza.

Gregory Lynn Cory of Novato was best man for his brother and ushering were Gerald Gunn of Sausalito, Howard Allen of Kentfield, and Kirk Laurie of Tiburon.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Fort Mason Officers' Club.

The bride was graduated from Lowell High School and attended Middlebury College. She was graduated from the University of California.

The bridegroom, son of Col. and Mrs. Mark Ensign Cory of Novato, was graduated from Tamalpais High School and Dartmouth College. He attended Boalt Hall at the University of California. He is assigned with the Army to Oakland Personnel Processing Center at Travis Air Force Base.

Following a wedding trip along the Oregon Coast, they will reside in Fairfield.

Group Plans Tour

The Marin County Welcome Wagon Club will have a tour of Napa Valley wineries on Sept. 14, starting from Purity Market, Northgate Shopping Center, Terra Linda, at 9:45 a.m. The group will board buses and carry their own picnic lunches, announces Mrs. Phillip Strick, reservations chairman.

Dolan-Battaglia Nuptials Held In San Rafael Mission

Mission San Rafael Arcangel in San Rafael was the setting for the Saturday nuptials of Mrs. Vincent Battaglia and Alvin Joseph Dolan, both of San Rafael. Anthony F. Costello, brother-in-law of the bride, gave her in marriage.

The Very Rev. Patrick J. Coyle officiated at the ceremony, and relayed to the couple the special Apostolic Blessing from Pope Paul VI. The bride wore an aqua silk crepe and lace gown, and Mrs. Costello, as matron of honor for her sister, wore a fuchsia silk crepe dress.

Matthew Cooke of Carmel, the bridegroom's cousin, served as best man.

A reception was held at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant. After a Southern California wedding trip the couple will live in San Jose.

The new Mrs. Dolan is the widow of the late Victor Battaglia, and she is the sister of Mrs. George Raniolo of San Francisco. Anthony R. Battaglia is her son.

The bridegroom is the son of the late William L. Dolan and Margaret C. Dolan. He was graduated from California School of Mechanical Arts in San Francisco. Now retired, he has served as a claims adjuster for the California State Automobile Assn.

Harvey Prathers Of Novato Feted On Golden Wedding

An open house at the Petaluma home of Dr. and Mrs. William Lee was given Saturday for Mrs. Lee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Prather of Novato on their golden wedding. Cohosts were their son and daughter-in-law, the John Prathers of Santa Rosa. Granddaughters who shared hostess duties were Lani Lee, Rona Lee and Pamela Prather.

The Prathers were married in Ukiah on Aug. 28, 1915 and since their marriage Mr. Prather has been a court reporter for superior and federal courts throughout Northern California. Currently he is the court reporter for the municipal court of Marin County, San Rafael. Both of the couple are descendants of pioneer California families, and Mr. Prather's ancestors were members of the Donner party. For many years the Prathers raised and showed thoroughbred and Arabian horses on the West Coast and in Canada, and Mr. Prather is a founder of Redwood Acres Fair Grounds in Eureka.

A special guest at the party was Mrs. Hale Prather of Citrus Heights, who was matron of honor at the couple's wedding 50 years ago.

Golf A-Go-Go Hints Marin Going Through Old Cycle

LIFE IS CYCLICAL, says the scientist.

History repeats itself, says the historian.

Public opinion is like a pendulum, says the politician.

If you want proof that each is right, you need look no further than right here in Marin.

LESS THAN TWO decades ago, it was the custom of certain organizations (whose identities need not now be recalled) to organize and conduct "smokers" hereabout.

"Smokers" varied in programming but they had something in common. There usually was an initial period of refreshment and gaming—Las Vegas style. It wasn't clear where the crap tables and roulette tables came from, but they were usually there.

Later in the evening came the "show." A master of ceremonies cracked raw jokes between "acts."

If you remember the "You Gotta Have a Gimmick" sequence from the musical comedy "Gypsy," you have the picture of these "acts" at the Marin "smokers" of yesteryear.

Sometimes lewd movies followed the live show.

Needless to say, admittance was limited to male adults.

Finally, the heat of complaints from those who disapproved led law enforcement authorities to put out the word, quietly, "There'll be no more smokers."

THEN THERE WAS "gaming."

Two decades ago and more it was the custom of some Marin lodges, service organizations and even some churches to hold "benefits" that involved roulette, dice and other Las Vegas-type equipment.

Because they were "for a good cause," such "benefits" were tolerated by law enforcement authorities. In fact, uniformed police were frequently in attendance to "keep order."

Again, the heat of protests from people who disapproved finally led law enforcement authorities to "blow the whistle"; quietly of course.

Same thing happened to a few "bookie" operations at barber shops and bars hereabout.

FOR A MATTER OF a decade or so we have been able to take pride in how "clean" our Marin community is.

Are we beginning to enter a new cycle?

Is the pendulum now about to swing?

Yes, there are signs that indicate we may be entering a new cycle.

We have a night spot or two in Marin which feature "exotic dancers," a euphemism for strippers.

We have a night spot or two which feature "go-go" entertainment and it is hard to see how topless "swimmers" can be far away at these places.

At least one annual "smoker" has made a comeback, although the invitations says it is a "barbecue."

We have a police chief in Marin who has publicly advocated legalized gambling.

We have medical "authorities" and clergymen publicly condoning the use of marijuana.

And we have most recently the unprotested case of the "topless" female caddies at a Marin golf tournament.

Our local stages and screens display some pretty raw "entertainment."

Our newsstands do a substantial business in some pretty raw literature, if the word literature can be used to describe the junk that our people are buying.

It certainly looks like the pendulum has swung.

—Jack Craemer

Why Not A Day For Folsom Man?

Next month we celebrate Columbus Day. In parts of the country where there are large Scandinavian populations, note is taken of Leif Ericson Day. Why not, we wonder, go one step further and proclaim a Folsom Man Day?

When we speak of Folsom Man, we do not refer to parolees from our State institute at Folsom, California. We refer to that eminently ancient fellow who crossed the Bering Straits from Siberia to Alaska to become the ancestor of the American Indian.

This pre-historic stone-age man, whose distinctive flints have been found all the way from Alaska to New Mexico, was the First American and arrived here when the New Frontier was really new.

He was the first everything to this land of ours. We think he (and Folsom Woman) deserve a day of their own. Preferably, a national holiday, the first Tuesday in September. All in favor, raise your right hands.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BRICKBATS to the thoughtless or malicious vandals who play with matches and set fires near Richardson Bay Bridge. They are tampering with human lives and property.

A BOUQUET to the state for eliminating the temporary one-cent gasoline tax as promised.

BOUQUETS to Novato Chamber of Commerce for hosting the second annual reception for new teachers in the Novato Unified School District.

BRICKBATS for the unsightliness caused by the installation of utility poles right in the middle of newly widened Second Street in San Rafael.

BOUQUETS to the Terra Linda Recreation and Park District officials for setting up a strict set of rules for teen dances, in collaboration with the youngsters. Let's hope future dances will not be marred by vandalism and rowdyism.

A BOUQUET to the county supervisors for adopting a strict policy governing the use of county cars by employees.

BRICKBATS to those responsible for introducing topless caddies at the Marin Country Club in Novato.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

When a woman shouted: "Help! Fire! My baby is trapped!" from the fourth floor window of a New York City tenement, she got an immediate response from a 16-year-old Chinese-American girl, Carole Ng.

The alert teen-ager dashed into the building, up four flights of stairs, and then groped her way into a burning, smoke-filled bedroom. She finally found the 4-year-old girl on a blazing mattress.

Grabbing a blanket, Carole wrapped the child in it to protect her from the smoke and flames and then hurriedly carried her down the stairs to safety.

As firemen led the frantic mother from the building, she was elated to see Carole in a doorway across the street, hugging her little daughter in her blanket.

Spur-of-the-moment courage is seldom displayed by persons who are wrapped up in self and insensitive to the predicament of others.

Deepen in yourself the same love for all people that God has for you and you will be alert to their needs and quick to respond insofar as you are able.

"Love one another heartily." (1 Peter 1:22)

Inspire me, O Holy Spirit, with the courage that comes from love.

The Thin Line In Watts Riots

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It is odd that with everyone trying to find causes of the Los Angeles rioting and looting that two causes have gone almost unmentioned.

The civil rights leaders who have been preaching and using non-violent illegal methods should place a large part of the blame on themselves. It is a very thin line between non-violent illegal acts and violent illegal acts; those who advocate the former have only themselves to blame when violence breaks out.

Our welfare system, which takes from the business man and the working man and gives it to those who do not work, is a cause of the looting. Many looters figure that the government has been taking from the working man and handing it over to them, why not cut out the government and go steal it themselves.

Boy's Record In I-J Story

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I feel impelled to write to you in regard to your story on the tragic accident that took the life of an 18-year-old girl, Sharon Pritchard, Monday night. I have admired the I-J for the wonderful news coverage it gives Marin and I wonder if you would explain to me and the family and friends of Sharon just what useful purpose and necessity prompted the enclosure in the article disclosing the record of the Silva boy? Surely there is lifelong heartache for the girl's mother and the girl is dead and the boy seriously injured; so what relationship did this have to the coverage of the accident except to make the heartache all the more unbearable and to cast scandal into a situation which helps none. WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO MAN'S HUMANITY TO MAN AND THE FEELING THAT THERE BUT FOR THE GRACE OF GOD GO I?

This has happened before in your paper and I humbly ask you to review your policy on such matters and realize kicking people when they are down just isn't right and even boys who have served county jail sentences have feelings and presumably have paid their debt to society.

Thank you for continuing to bring the news as it happens but PLEASE leave out unnecessary information that can only hurt people that are usually hurt enough and still have to CARRY ON in a community where we like to think we are among friends. How about if tables were turned and we had to walk in another fellow's shoes?

Church Lauded In Sponsorship

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I am writing to praise and commend Christ Church of Sausalito for sponsoring the panel discussion on the problem of marijuana which took place Aug. 19, 1965. Too often a church only mirrors the fixed and hardened social, religious, economic, political or racial preconceptions of its members. Too rarely does a church aspire to loosen the grasp that long unreviewed opinion and prejudice may have upon a congregation.

In fomenting discussion about why there is widespread use of marijuana in Marin County, Christ Church has succeeded, in my view, in stimulating individuals to think anew about old views and to test afresh whether old persuasions and ideas remain valid amidst what is undeniable change. In stirring things up, the church cannot properly be said to be acting up, for the church should take an active hand in weekday life. The church should have and implement a position on issues of human moment—be the issue birth control, rebaptism, marijuana or social discrimination.

I wish to laud Christ Church, for churches across the nation have begun in a most positive way to make their activities meaningful in the secular world also. Christ Church in Sausalito deserves esteem for exemplifying this national movement here.

Our Gremlin Lives In A Quonset Hut

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I have always had the urge to comment on certain items in the I-J, but somehow never get to sit down and write. But, this time, this item was so off center, that I just HAD to comment on it. No doubt others will also.

As you can see from the paragraph clipped from the Saturday (Aug. 28) I-J, mention is made of QUERING HOUSING. Wonder who "researched?" this item. The aerial photo was lovely, nevertheless.

The housing in question is WHERRY, named for Sen. Homer Wherry and was named after him. I believe it was the Wherry Housing Act of 1952. I may be wrong on this, though (not having a research department!).

I enjoy the aerial photos printed weekly and it is fun to try to find old landmarks, or current ones.

Unification Foes Being Punished

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The six school districts that voted against total unification are now being fined $119,000 which will be paid to five districts that voted for, but lost the election. Some voters were honestly convinced that total unification was best, but we'll never know how many voted simply to get something at the neighbor's expense.

I see no difference between the public official accepting money for his vote and citizens accepting money from the legislature for their votes. Bribery is bribery, no matter how paid.

This punishment of a majority indicates how freedom to elect is being wiped out. It would be better to suspend all election rights rather than permit such mockery of the democratic process. If any citizen is considering a petition to the school board to reject this money so unfairly acquired, count me in.

LBJ's Action In Steel Deadlock Shows State Of Free Enterprise

WASHINGTON (AP)—Free enterprise—up to a point. The general welfare comes first. This country has moved a long way from the myth of a truly free enterprise system.

THE LATEST example is President Lyndon B. Johnson's intervention in the steel dispute which, if it became a prolonged strike, would damage the economy and therefore most Americans.

Even in their earliest days Americans loved the free competition slogan while they made a joke of it.

In their first attempt at union under the Articles of Confederation — from 1781 to 1789 when the colonies became states with a central government—the individual states were entranced with the go-it-alone idea.

Each considered itself sovereign. The central government, without a president or courts, had only a Congress where the representatives were more like ambassadors than representatives.

The central government couldn't impose taxes or tariffs. The states set up their own tariffs, particularly against one another, to protect their residents from outside competition.

THEY WERE WHIZZING toward disaster, recognized it, set up the present government and, in the first Congress, passed a tariff act to protect Americans from foreign competition.

Through most of American history presidents rejected the idea of government responsibility for the general welfare even while the government was giving new railroads land and subsidies.

One president vetoed a bill to help the insane poor, saying it would make the poor only more hopeless and dependent. Another vetoed a bill to help drought-stricken farmers.

In this same period millions of Americans who never heard of Herbert Spencer, the British philosopher, were his disciples and his victims by absorbing his belief in the devil take the hindmost.

IN THIS VIEW the poor were poor because they were inferior and the rich rich because they were superior.

But while the country still followed this rugged individualism idea, the Germans had set up unemployment pay (almost 60 years ahead of this country) and the British social security (more than 20 years ahead of this country).

Even President Herbert Hoover, a humane man, as late as 1932 couldn't bring himself to accept the idea the government should give direct help to the impoverished.

But the disaster of depression made Americans face what they had been tardy to acknowledge, although throughout history individual groups had been seeking special benefits: That the government not only had a responsibility for the general welfare but should assert it. Then, for the first time, in 1946 Congress said so in the employment act of that year. The great change came with the New Deal.

WELFARE PROGRAMS, established then, have been expanded enormously. And government really butted in on the free enterprise relations between management and labor with the Wagner Act of 1935 and the Taft-Hartley Act of 1947.

The former compelled employers to deal with employees' unions and the latter, in the case of big industries, empowered the government to get an injunction to delay a strike at least 80 days.

BARKER ON CHINA

Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek Visits United States

By GEORGE BARKER

Twenty-five years ago Emily Hahn wrote a best-seller about the aristocratic Soong sisters, three elegant ladies who had woven their lives into the destiny of modern China.

MADAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK, 67, the youngest of the sisters, is now visiting the United States. On her agenda is a visit to her eldest sister, Mme. H. H. Kung, 77, at her Hudson River estate. The third sister, Mme. Sun Yat-sen, 75, will be unable to make it a real reunion because she is vice-chairman of the Chinese Communist Party.

The three were educated in the United States—Mesdames Kung and Sun at Wesleyan Women's College in Macon, Ga., and Madame Chiang at Wellesley. Their father was an American-educated Chinese Methodist missionary from Kwantung Province who made a modest fortune printing Bibles in Shanghai.

From printing Bibles he branched out into printing underground political tracts for Dr. Sun Yat-sen's 1911 revolution which toppled the Manchu Dynasty.

Soong Ching-ling went to Japan to marry Dr. Sun Yat-sen, who divorced his wife for the occasion. He was 48 and she was barely 20. It was about 1910 and he had only 10 years to live before succumbing to cancer.

His philosophy of government was sufficiently fuzzy that both the Nationalists and the Communists claim him as a hero.

After Dr. Sun's death, Chingling was steadily more and more leftist in her thinking, and she hated the excessive brutality of the Nationalists, which she laid at Chiang's door. She was well-known as the virtuous widow of Dr. Sun who gave much time to orphanages and other good works. What better symbol of legitimacy and continuity could the Mao regime want?

NOT LONG AFTER Chingling married, the eldest sister, Ai-ling, was wed to H. H. Kung, son of one of China's wealthiest banking families. Even before the war, he was rich. During the war he was Minister of Finance in Chiang's government and he and Ai-ling multiplied their fortune many times, speculating with inside information and taking generous commissions and kickbacks on war purchases and government payrolls.

No one will ever know just how much U.S. aid to the suffering Chinese found its way, directly or indirectly, into the pockets of the Kungs. Today, they are one of the world's wealthiest couples. Yet, she is, like her sisters, a gentle-mannered, charming woman and gives away much money to charities. The Kungs live in Riverdale, N.Y., with a colony of China expatriates, attracting as little attention as possible.

SOONG MEI-LING married Chiang Kai-shek, after he divorced his wife and rid himself of a concubine and embraced the Methodist faith. After he succeeded Dr. Sun as leader of the Kuomintag Party, Mme. Chiang became China's First Lady. When the Communists took over China in 1949, she fled with her husband to Taiwan. They live on an estate outside the island capital of Taipei.

What is she doing in the United States now? One guess: U.S. economic aid to Taiwan is due to expire this year. Another: It is time for another push to seat Red China in the U.N. Mme. Chiang can be expected to oppose these plans with all the vigor of the Soong personality. If not directly, then behind the scenes.

THE VILLAGE — The dusty streets of An Khe appear quiet enough but this little Vietnamese town is an outpost in Communist-held territory where to venture one mile down the road requires armed guards. The defenders of the village, advised by Americans, sit behind their barbed wire and watch for Red attacks. (UPI Telephoto)

VIET OUTPOST LIFE

Troops Fight Reds, Boredom, Panic

By ROBERT C. MILLER

AN KHE, South Viet Nam (UPI) —For the American soldiers who call themselves "three-time losers" at this outpost, the Viet Nam war is a year of lonely boredom spliced occasionally by moments of concentrated panic.

The Indian wars of the Old West, where the Americans were kept under siege in their walled forts, must have been something like life at An Khe. But here the banner above the fort is the yellow and red striped Vietnamese flag and miles of rolled barbed wire and deep ditches protect the defenders from the enemy.

You enter and leave An Khe by air. Although the fort lies alongside the wide highway linking the port of Qui Nhon with the highlands town of Pleiku, no American dares travel it day or night. Roving Communist bands own the countryside.

In mid-July the 100-mile road linking Pleiku and Qui Nhon was opened by 6,000 Vietnamese troops, fleets of SAC bombers, massed batteries of artillery and large concentrations of fighters and bombers. A week after they left the Viet Cong closed the highway again.

The tour of duty at the fort is one year for the American Special Forces team who have the job of "advising" the Vietnamese military forces attempting to hold the town and the rich valley that lies half way up the highlands road to Pleiku.

For most of the officers and senior non-coms this is their second or third assignment to Viet Nam, and they refer to themselves as the "three-time losers."

An Khe has a pet bull named Heathcliff and a twice-captured armored car named Matilda. The troops have their own brewery, the kids a swimming hole where suits are not needed, but armed guards are.

The Hanoi Communist radio regularly reminds the garrison that it's locale is identical with Dien Bien Phu, and it's fate will be the same.

More than a dozen Viet Cong probing attacks have been made against the fort and repulsed.

The fort's commander is Maj. Charles Brewington, 36, of Fayeteville, N.C., who made his first trip to Southeast Asia five years ago as an adviser to the Laotian government.

Like the forts in the Old West, An Khe has its camp followers, women and children. The Montagnard, or mountain people, who comprise most of the soldiers, insist on taking their families with them, and the colorful, pipe-smoking women and naked and half-naked urchins roam the area. They have their own living quarters on one side of the camp where they brew their own rice beer, a powerful concoction that is sipped out of long bamboo tubes with community straws.

The women dry their laundry on barbed wire and fight along side their men. The Vietnamese war is filled with incidents where the Montagnard women loaded the guns fired by their men in fighting off a Viet Cong attack. But it complicates the supply problem, and S-Sgt. Fernando Muzquiz of Fayetteville, N.C., submits supply requisitions of a feminine nature never before requested by an all-male Special Forces team in the field.

One of Muzquiz's supply problems was Heathcliff, who was purchased off a local farmer as prime beef on the hoof that was destined for steaks, hamburger and beef stew in the garrison's kitchens. But the human-loving Brahmin bull turned out to be another Ferdinand who adored Americans, and followed the troopers around like a pet dog.

Sgts. Dick Bourne of Tonawanda, N.Y., and Charles Lindwald of Laporte, Ind., paid the mess fund $20 each for Heathcliff's life, and the spoiled young bull now roams the camp almost as revered as his cousins in India. He grazes behind more barbed wire than ever kept any prize bull in pasture, but still manages to go AWOL when some Vietnamese leaves the gate open.

Matilda is Top Sergeant Edward Sheridan's pet. The former Dodge power wagon was the brainchild of another Special Forces camp which transformed the truck into an armored car by lining the sides, front and top with boiler plate. It was captured once by the Viet Cong, liberated by Sheridan's troops and captured again in June when Sheridan and his troops were ambushed down the road from An Khe. They retrieved it the next day, patched up the bullet holes, and it is now the fort's mobile armored troop carrier.

"We've welded those machine guns on this time," the wiry Sheridan declared, "and the V. C. will never get them off without a hacksaw or blow torch."

The people-to-kids program of the Special Forces is unique. It stands six foot six, weighs 250 pounds and is an engineer enlisted man named Tiny. Tiny is James Freeman of San Mateo, Calif., a former logging truck driver who buys 25 pound sacks of candy with his own money and rides a jeep through the village making like Santa Claus.

Watching the candy distribution one night, a tough old paratrooper shook his head. "Some people love women," he said, "Others go nuts over booze. That guy just likes kids, anybody's kids."

The Americans here are apparently taking Ho Chi Minh at his word and preparing for a 20-year war. They are concentrating on the youngsters whose minds the Reds will never capture in An Khe because they have no Tiny Freemans, no George Havens or any other homesick, sentimental, tough Americans who like people, particularly kids, anybody's kids.

Sagas Swirl On Berlin Wall

By JOHN DORNBERG
Worldwide Press Service

BERLIN—An olive-green Russian Pobeda sedan, license number A-7 41-27, approached the barriers near Checkpoint Charlie on the East Berlin side of the Wall.

The driver, a Soviet army corporal, slowed down and looked expectantly at the East German border guards. The Soviet lieutenant, on the seat beside him, inspected his fingernails and the Russian major on the back seat was engrossed in that morning's copy of Pravda.

Respectfully, the East German officials saluted and waved the sedan into West Berlin.

Just past the American military police shack, the car came to a halt. Then the three got out, and they also helped out a young girl who had been hiding under a blanket on the floor.

All four were East Germans, not Russians. The car had been borrowed from the factory for which the three men worked, and their Soviet uniforms had been ingeniously tailored from civilian clothes with the aid of dyes, tinfoil and colored ribbons.

This escape is only one of thousands that have been engineered since Walter Ulbricht sealed off his fief and built the Berlin Wall four years ago. Ingenuity, resourcefulness, a great deal of luck, and plenty of naked courage have helped 25,000 East Germans across the border since August 1961.

Besides digging tunnels, ramming through barriers with trucks and cars, swimming icy rivers, running through minefields, jumping off East German pleasure steamers in foreign ports, and trying to cross the Baltic Sea to Scandinavia in rubber rafts, escapees have used every trick in the book, and some not listed.

Occasionally subterfuge at the expense of innocent bystanders has paved the way to freedom. Such was the case of Peter Selle, 26, who, after escaping himself, lured Dorothea Voss, a 17-year-old West German girl, into East Berlin and obtained her passport on a ruse; then he abandoned her and used the passport to help his own East German wife to escape.

Recently the mystique of the great escape movement has been deflated by confirmed reports that, in addition to altruistic West Berlin students who operate escape networks, there are gangs of West Berlin underworld characters who operate their own "underground railroad" for no other motive than profit, charging as much as $1,500 for each refugee they free.

Recently the Bonn government opened its records to reveal the details surrounding some of the most exciting escapes. Each case tells a story of grim determination and remarkable craftiness.

There was the case of East Berlin photographer Horst Beyer who, equipped with bouquets of flowers, went to the "Rotation Club," picked up two attractive East German girls and asked them if they would pose as models for him for propaganda pictures at the "anti-fascist protective wall."

Beyer went to the Friedrich Strasse crossing, talked some of the border guards into posing with the girls, and started taking pictures. With each shot he walked back until he was over the line and safely in West Berlin.

An escape network helped nine East Germans flee over a period of several weeks last fall in a tiny, two-passenger Isetta minicar, remodeled to provide a hiding place for one passenger on each trip. On each haul, the driver—each a foreign student at Berlin's Free University—was changed. On the tenth trip, while the Algerian driver of the minicar was in the border guard hut getting his papers stamped, the hidden passenger, a 59-year-old woman, moved in her cramped hiding place, rocking the tiny car. The motion caught a guard's eye and that unusual escape route was closed.

PRE-EMPTION ISSUE

Cities League, Supervisors Split Over Local Right To Outlaw Vice

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—Battle lines now are being formed for what could become the No. 1 issue in the 1961 election—local law enforcement.

The focal point for this issue, assuming it qualifies for a spot on the November election ballot, is an initiative which would overturn the celebrated Carol Lane decision of the state supreme court and provide local governments could adopt anti-vice regulations.

Already it's indicated there is a sharp difference of opinion between two of the most influential organizations in California —the County Supervisors Assn. of California and the League of California Cities. The CSAC has all but openly sponsored saying the matter of local regulations on morals should be left up to a legislative study and possible further action.

To add to the controversy over the local law enforcement issue, perhaps unfortunately, is the slogan of the John Birch Society—Support Your Local Police.

The Carol Lane case involved a prostitute arrested under a Los Angeles ordinance which prohibited unmarried persons from resorting together for sexual purposes. The supreme court held the legislature had preempted the field of morals and anti-vice and local jurisdictions could not adopt ordinances on the subject.

The proposed initiative is sponsored by Warren Dorn, Los Angeles county supervisor who heads a statewide committee of the supervisors' association on law enforcement.

If the petitions for the initiative can collect 468,259 signatures of registered voters, it would appear on the November, 1966, election ballot as a proposed amendment to the state constitution. It would permit cities and counties to adopt regulations "respecting prostitution and other criminal aspects of sexual activity, rape, lewd or dissolute or obscene conduct, public indecent exposure, obscenity, pornography, loitering with respect to the protection of persons from molestation" and provided such regulations would not be in conflict with state law unless they actually permitted acts prohibited by state law or prohibited acts permitted by state law.

In a letter to all city attorneys, Richard (Bud) Carpenter, executive director of the League of California Cities, said the initiative appeared premature and could interfere with legislative process. Carpenter noted the assembly committee on criminal procedure will study the subject of preemption before the 1967 session.

William R. MacDougall, general counsel of the supervisors association, said it wasn't clear yet how far the organization would go in campaigning for the initiative. But he noted that Dorn was head of the association's statewide committee on law enforcement with members from all counties.

"There have been two general sessions of the legislature since the Carol Lane decision," MacDougall said, "and we have seen an absolute refusal of the legislature to do anything about the question of preemption. During the 1965 session, the assembly committee on criminal procedure split right down the middle, 5 to 5, on all the proposals concerning it."

Most Of Local Taxes Go Into Schools

By BOB HORTON
Associated Press Writer

Fifty million kids—give or take a few dropouts—troop off to school this month and one of the nation's biggest industries is back in business. Beating the 3-Rs, modern style, into the little ones is a $25 billion proposition, and we are about to have another go at it.

Junior gets it in the head (it is fervently hoped), mother gets it in the lunch box and car pool, and the old man gets it in the pocketbook. By far the greatest percentage of local taxes goes for schools—more than for highways, local government, police or any other public service.

All states have the public school problem in common, but the quality of schooling, and the money spent for it, varies widely. Mississippi, for example, spends $273 per pupil on elementary and secondary education. At the top of the list, New York spends $790 per pupil.

Here are some insights on the business of schooling, as reported by the National Education Assn.:

More men are teaching in public schools these days, but women still lead the field, particularly where the pay isn't so good.

Nearly a third—31.3 per cent —of the public school teachers in the United States are men. This compares with 14.1 per cent in 1919-20 and 21.3 per cent as late as 1950.

Utah has the highest percentage—41.2—of male teachers in elementary and secondary schools. Second is Arizona with 40.3 per cent, followed by Wisconsin at 39.6, California 39.2 and Minnesota 36.8.

At the other extreme, only 19 per cent of the teachers in South Carolina are men. Virginia is next to last on the list with 20 per cent, below Alabama (21) and Georgia (21.8).

And in these states where women teachers far outnumber men, pay scales are among the lowest. South Carolina, for example, ranks 48th in estimated average salaries. Its average is $4,450, compared with the national average of $6,235. Alabama ranks 44th ($4,775), George 40th ($5,050) and Virginia 33rd ($5,450).

Heading the pay list is California with $7,900. Then come New York ($7,800), Connecticut ($6,975), Massachusetts $6,950) and Illinois $6,809). Ranking 50th on the average pay scale is Mississippi with $4,103.

Eleven other states pay above the nation's $6,235 average: Maryland ($6,727), Delaware ($6,700), Michigan ($6,700), New Jersey ($6,698), Arizona ($6,670), Indiana ($6,530), Nevada ($6,530), Oregon ($6,470), Minnesota ($6,460), Washington ($6,400) and—just barely—Rhode Island ($6,251).

The percentage of illiteracy is lowest in Iowa (0.7), Idaho and Oregon (0.8) and highest in Louisiana (6.3), South Carolina (5.5) and Hawaii (5.0).

Since financial resources also are a factor in education, the NEA measured the ability of states to support government services.

As might be expected, some of the states with lower teachers' salaries and higher levels of illiteracy also had fewer resources to earmark for educational service.

Per capita personal income in the United States averaged $2,449 in 1963. Below this figure were Mississippi ($1,390), South Carolina ($1,558), Arkansas $1,607) and Louisiana $1,776).

These contrasted with Nevada's $3,396, Delaware's $3,298, Connectitut's $3,185, New York's $3,013 and California's $2,974.

In 1964-65, expenditures per pupil in elementary and secondary schools averaged $483, ranging from $790 in New York to $273 in Mississippi. With New York at the top were New Jersey ($607), Connecticut ($593) and California ($570). At the lower end with Mississippi were Alabama ($288), South Carolina ($289), Tennessee ($300), and West Virginia ($315).

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

New fighting over an old problem cast an ominous shadow this week over the beautiful vale of Kashmir and threatened to turn its fabled pleasure gardens into a bloody battlefield.

India and Pakistan have quarreled over the one-time princely state since Britain granted the great Indian subcontinent its freedom in 1947. In 1949 a small scale war was fought over the disputed area and ended with United Nations mediation.

A cease-fire line was established giving India control of most of the territory, but intermittent forays over the established border had made the truce a tenuous one at best.

Pakistan charges the fighting is a liberation movement; India accuses Pakistan of trying to seize Indian territory.

The fighting this week, however, is no mere skirmish triggered by nervous border guards.

Indian and Pakistani jet fighters tangled in the skies over Kashmir in bloody engagements giving rise to fears that undeclared border war might start up into full-scale hostilities between the two feuding nations.

Today, Pakistani troops thrust across Southwestern Kashmir 10 miles into Indian-controlled territory. The attack was spearheaded by U.S.-built tanks and jet warplanes sent to Pakistan to buttress that country's defenses.

Around The World, Around The Clock

Washington—Under constant pressure from President Johnson, steel negotiators had reached an agreement averting a nationwide strike threatened for Wednesday.

Santo Domingo—Hector Garcia-Godoy, a former cabinet member in the administration of ousted President Juan Bosch, was installed as provisional president of the Dominican Republic. He immediately pledged to hold elections within nine months.

Saigon—U. S. and South Vietnamese planes continued blasting of wooded areas in Viet Cong held territory. Success of the attacks was emphasized by the finding of 90 guerrilla bodies in a forest pounded by the big bombers Thursday.

Lamberene—90-year-old humanitarian Dr. Albert Schweitzer was near death at his jungle hospital but the nature of his sickness was not revealed.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Sept. 4, the 247th day of 1965 with 118 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase; the morning stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn; the evening stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn.

German composer Anton Bruckner was born on this day in 1824.

On this day in history:

In 1609, the island of Manhattan was discovered by Henry Hudson.

In 1781, Spanish settlers founded the city of Los Angeles.

In 1870, the Third French Republic was proclaimed.

In 1941, a German submarine attacked a U.S. destroyer off the coast of Ireland.

A thought for the day—British author Rudyard Kipling said: "Everyone is more or less mad at one point."

Canada Ships Wheat

WINNIPEG (AP) — Canada exported the second largest amount of wheat in history during the 1964-65 crop year, the Board of Grain Commissioners says.

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Hazard Of This Hand Really Is How Your Partner Will Feel

One of the deftest maneuvers in bridge is to grab the cards, cut, and ask the next player to deal quickly because it's getting late.

If you're really brisk about it, you can prevent your partner from discussing the previous hand.

Opening lead — ♠ K

South took the ace of spades, ruffed a spade, led a trump to the ten and ruffed another spade. Then he drew a second round of trumps and led out three rounds of diamonds.

This would have been wonderful if West had won the third diamond.

EAST WON

As it happened, East won and led the jack of clubs.

The defenders took three club tricks, and South quickly reached for the other deck and cut for the next deal.

TOO QUICK

It was all very quick; too quick. South lost his contract by rushing in with the ace of spades.

South should refuse the first spade and take the second to get rid of his low diamond. Then he takes the top diamonds, leads a trump to dummy's ten and ruffs a diamond with a high trump.

When the diamonds break, South draws trumps with the ace and king to make sure of getting to dummy when the trumps are all out. Then he can lead the last diamond and get rid of a club.

If South had thought just a bit more before playing to the first trick it wouldn't have seemed so late when the hand ended.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one spade.

You have 12 points in high cards, and 1 point for the doubleton, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide to bid because you have a fine major suit and 2½ Quick Tricks.

Domed Stadium Not All Pure Profits

HOUSTON (UPI) — Houston's domed stadium draws big crowds, but it costs millions to operate for a year, Houston Sports Assn. president Roy Hofheinz is fond of telling visitors.

The bill from the light company for one month's operation was $26,746. One month's gas service cost $9,851. Housekeeping duties, such as vacuuming the theater-type seats after each game, costs $300,000 a year. And the air conditioner's charcoaol filters set the stadium operators back $30,000 a year just for charcoal.

JIM MURRAY

Remember Big Jim? Just Ask Koufax

PITTSBURGH—For the Dodgers, it was a bad day at Black Rock—which is about as apt a description as I can think of for Forbes Field. It's not a ball park, it's a coal mine with seats, the mushroom capital of the major league. You shouldn't even go into it without a canary. The infield is 360 feet of anthracite. The outfield is so damp, if you don't move around, you get moss.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, who didn't even expect to be invited to this party, now are the hottest team in the National League. It's not hard. The rest of the league's teeth are chattering.

BEATING the Dodgers these days is about like opening fire on lifeboats, but the Pirates shot down Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale in one night, and the 1963 Yankees would like to know the formula for that one. In the locker room after the game, Sandy Koufax, whose boiling point normally is higher than water, either dropped or threw a bottle of shave lotion on the tile floor of the locker room. Either way, he was entitled. The star of David had pitched well enough to beat the 1929 Athletics, but he ended up being victimized once more by the most fearsome array of pop-fly hitters in the annals of the game. He pitched so well it took the Dodgers 11 innings to lose.

Part of the reason, indeed the big reason, was a big happy-go-lucky Californian named Jim Pagliaroni who up to this year had hit Koufax pretty good—that is to say, he got one hit off Koufax in two years. He had gotten only two hits off him in his lifetime when he came to the plate in the fifth inning and ripped a fork ball off the left-field wall for a double. A "fork ball" is not to be confused with the mound of spaghetti one makes twisting the silverwear against a soup spoon in an Italian restaurant. It's an off-speed pitch that's normally as hard to drive out of the infield as a mound of cotton.

JIM PAGLIARONI has the strength for it. He won the game in the 11th inning by ripping a fastball so hard off the left-field wall it left splinters. In one night he has doubled his lifetime production of hits against Koufax and, incidentally, may have decided the National League pennant.

James Vincent Pagliaroni is a light-hearted young man (27) who stands 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 210 pounds when he lays off the lasagna. He takes baseball just as seriously as it needs to be taken. An Irish mother and an Italian father gave him just enough wit and pasta to make him not only a welcome addition to a ball club but also to a party. Once, when I wandered into a Pirate dressing room looking for the manager, I inquired of Jim: "Which one's Walker?" Jim thought a moment. "Just look for a guy who looks like a turtle wearing a baseball cap," he instructed.

JIM'S CAREER might have proceeded even quicker except he fell in with evil companions—the Boston Red Sox. It was not that the Boston Red Sox stayed up late (although they have been known to do that) or that they hung around poolhalls or stole hubcaps. It was just that they considered the game of baseball a function of a group of soloists, not an orchestration. It was the belief of Jim Pagliaroni that, on a given night, only one or two of the Red Sox players could tell you without phoning a paper who had won the game. All they could tell you was how many hits they personally had made.

Jim, who was a born soloist himself, eagerly fell in with this program. It was not whether you won or lost but how you played the game, all right. Pagliaroni became more like Pagliacci.

THEN, ONE day, he got traded to the Pirates for Dick Stuart. It was a dirty trick to play on the Red Sox. The Pirates should have been proseuted or at least the Red Sox should have reported the transaction to the Better Business Bureau. Because Jim Pagliaroni is that rarest of baseball birds—a catcher who can hit for average, and still not have to chase every second pitch back to the backstop.

Jim Pagliaroni can run just fast enough to keep from being arrested for loitering. He wears his hair so long he looks as if he were on his way to conduct the Philharmonic. His father was a maitre d' in so many hotel restaurants across the country that Jim was 15 years old before he could recognize him without a tux on.

IN THE NATIONAL League, nobody says: "How many hits did you get today?" They say: "Did you win?" In Boston, the callers to the paper would demand: "How many hits did Ted William get?" And hang up before they could get the score.

Jim Pagliaroni may never make the world forget Gabby Hartnett — although nobody will ever call him "Whispering" Pagliaroni. But no one will ever try to get an 0-and-2 fastball by him again—as Koufax did in the last of the 11th. Jim hasn't had that kind of luck since he was a three-letter man at Wilson High School in Long Beach, Calif. And when he goes home to Grass Valley, Calif., in winter to sell real estate, the head of the household won't answer the door and say: "Hey, there's some gabby guy here with long hair with underwater lots at Lake Tahoe," but will say instead: "Hey, There's Jim Pagliaroni! You remember? The guy who got two hits off Koufax in one night? Settled the damnedest pennant race you ever saw. I'll take two lots, Jim, even if I have to row out to them."

Giants Run Into Trouble At Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants are still two days out of Los Angeles and already they've run into trouble.

The Chicago Cubs have put a kink in the Giants hopes of going to Chavez Ravine in Los Angeles with a road record that would demand Dodger respect.

The Cubs, themselves 13 games behind the National League leading Dodgers, dumped the Giants, 5-4, yesterday and dropped San Francisco into third place. The loss left the Giants two full games back of Los Angeles.

Cincinnati is in second, one game back.

Hoping to salvage the last two games of their Chicago stand, Giants Manager Herman Franks tagged right-hander Ron Herbel (8-7) to take on the Cubs today, against Bob Buhl (13-9).

The Giants move into Los Angeles on Monday to renew their battle with the Dodgers.

It was Billy Williams who deflated Giants hopes yesterday. He slugged his 26th home run and then slapped out a bases-loaded triple.

The loss moved the Giants 1½ games out of first, but the Dodgers added another half game by downing Houston last night.

Williams nudged the Cubs ahead, 1-0, in the fourth with his homer off starter Bob Bolin.

Bolin retaliated and put the Giants ahead, 2-1, in the fifth with his first homer of the season—following a single by Ken Henderson.

The Cubs sent Bolin to the shower in the fifth by loading the bases, Vic Roznovsky doubled, Don Kessinger singled and pitcher Bill Faul walked before reliever Masanori Murakami took the mound.

Don Landrum's infield single tied up the game, then Williams tripled off the right field wall.

The Giants got their fourth run in the final inning when pinch hitter Jack Hiatt doubled and then scored on a single by Jim Davenport.

DODGERS' SUCCESS—Here is a good example of the Los Angeles Dodgers "power" attack which has been good enough to keep them in first place through most of the National League season. Jim Lefebvre comes sliding home after Wes Parker lays down a squeeze bunt during the ninth inning of last night's game in Houston. Astros catcher Ron Brand scrambles after the bunt. Dodgers Win, Lead By A Game

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vive Lefebvre!

That could well be the rallying cry of the Los Angeles Dodgers as they claw and scratch their way toward the National League pennant.

They aren't there yet, but Jim Lefebvre, their second baseman, is making sure they have a good chance of making it. The rookie powered the Dodgers for the second consecutive game last night, driving in two runs and scoring the third in a 3-0 victory over Houston.

The triumph kept Los Angeles in first place, one game ahead of Cincinnati and two in front of San Francisco and Milwaukee.

Just the night before, Lefebvre lashed two singles and a double and drove in four runs as the Dodgers whipped Pittsburgh 7-1.

The 22-year-old infielder, a top contender for Rookie of the Year honors, is batting only .241, but he has knocked in 56 runs. Only Philadelphia's Dick Stuart, who has driven in 70 runs, has more RBI than Lefebvre of all NL players batting less than .250.

Lefebvre got the Dodgers started against the Astros in the second inning, singling across Ron Fairly, who walked and was sacrificed to second.

That was the only run of the game until the ninth. Then, with Lou Johnson aboard on a force play, Lefebvre drilled a triple to right-center field for one run and scored another on Wes Parker's squeeze bunt.

The youngster sparkled in the field as well. In the third inning, with two out and the tying run on base, Lefebvre raced halfway into right field and made a spectacular, over-the-shoulder catch of Walt Bond's fly ball.

Elsewhere in the NL, Cincinnati crushed Philadelphia 16-7, Chicago edged San Francisco 5-4, Milwaukee nipped Pittsburgh 4-3 and New York beat St. Louis 6-3.

While Lefebvre was beating Houston with his hitting and fielding, Nick Willhite, Howie Reed and Ron Perranoski blanked the Astros on eight hits. Willhite was forced to leave in the sixth when his arm stiffened.

Cincinnati and Philadelphia battled to a 6-6 tie through six innings, but the Reds put the game away with three runs in the seventh and seven more in the eighth.

Jack Baldschun's bases-loaded walk to John Edwards broke the deadlock, and Tommy Helms followed with a two-run single. Edwards doubled across two runs in the eighth while Pete Rose knocked in a pair with his fourth hit, a triple.

Throwing errors by right fielder Roberto Clemente, after Mack Jones' line drive, and first baseman Donn Clendenon, on Ed Mathews' grounder, gave Milwaukee two eighth-inning runs and a victory over the Pirates.

Pittsburgh had taken a 3-2 lead with two runs in the fourth on singles by Willie Stargell, Clendenon and Bill Mazeroski, and Del Crandall's grounder.

Jim Hickman unloaded home runs in his first three times at bat, driving in four runs for the Mets. But reliever Nelson Briles held Hickman to a single his last ime up. Bill White connected with one on for St. Louis.

Spunky 15-Year-Old Girl Starts Farallones Swim

COMBINED AP & UPI

SAN FRANCISCO — Spunky Leonore Modell, 15-year-old high school sophomore, began her marathon swim from the Farallon Islands to San Francisco today at a fast pace. She covered more than seven miles the first six hours.

The Sacramento, Calif., girl entered the chilly Pacific at 12:05 a.m.

She was averaging 1.2 nautical miles per hour and still going strong, taking soup as nourishment along the way.

Seas were smoothing out and waves were down to four feet. The water was 54 degrees and winds were light. The night was so dark that only Leonore's flourescent cap was visible at times.

Another swimmer was to enter the water at daybreak and pace Miss Modell during the day hours.

The swim has been attempted several times but no one has ever been able to buck the cold, shark-filled swift ocean currents between the small group of islands and the mainland.

"No, I'm not scared," the 5-5, 135 pound brunette told newsmen just before leaving for the mainland. "I feel fine... this is just another workout."

Leonore already is the youngest girl to swim the English Channel. She crossed the channel at 14, a year after she swam across Lake Tahoe three times.

If she completes the Farallones swim, she plans to try a round trip of the English Channel next year and the unconquered swim of Juan de Fuca, the 17-mile strait that divides Canada and Washington State.

Blue sharks have been reported by fishermen in the Farallon area, but Miss Modell's coach, Paul Herron, claims the blue sharks will not attack humans.

Herron, who operates a Sacramento health studio, said rigorous training and a special diet has enabled his student to complete the tough swims.

"The diet builds up a thin layer of fat under the skin," he said.

"It's the same type of fat that a bear builds when he goes into hibernation. It gives off energy and heat in the cold water so that her temperature can stay normal," he said.

Camilo Pascual Ready To Pitch For Twins

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP) — Camilo Pascual, Minnesota's ace right-hander, is ready to step into the fray and help the Twins in their American League pennant drive.

Chances are, thous, manager Sam Mele won't use him in the crucial Chicago series, but will pitch him in one of the games at Kansas City Monday.

The man best qualified to know, Dr. George Resta of Washington D.C., says: "He's completely healed, he can pitch any time." Resta operated on the Cuban curveballer Aug. 2 for torn shoulder muscles.

Pascual, who returned to Washington for a checkup Friday, was not on hand to see his mates defeat the White Sox 6-4 in the first of a three-game series.

Mele said, "I'd like to have him pitch one of the games in the doubleheader at Kansas City Monday. We'll put him in and see how far he can go. I'll talk to him when he gets back and see how he feels. I know he wants to pitch."

Pascual was bowling over the opposition in an impressive victory string early in the season before he developed arm trouble and stalled at 8-3.

Meantime, the Twins indicated they would petition Commissioner Ford Frick to put Pascual on the World Series eligible list. Normally, a player has to be on the active list by Aug. 31 to play in the Series.

But a Twins spokesman said exceptions have been made before, when a player returns to the roster after being on the disabled list at the deadline.

That would leave the Twins with only one of their key men still out.

Harmon Killebrew, the club's leading slugger when he was injured in a basepath collision Aug. 2, probably is still a week or more away from getting back in action. His dislocated left elbow has been slow healing and the husky infielder can't bend or extend the arm fully yet.

Question: Will Rigney Be Rehired?

LOS ANGELES (AP)— Bill Rigney's future as manager of the newly dubbed California Angels has become a mushrooming riddle.

Rigney was hired by owner Gene Autry as manager of the Los Angeles Angels and the question now is:

Has Autry said whether Rigney will return next season to manage his California Angels when the club moves to suburban Anaheim?

The club's name was changed yesterday.

A San Francisco newspaper quoted Autry as saying on television in Northern California that "you'll be reading within a few days that Rigney has been rehired as our manager."

But back home in Los Angeles, Autry told newsmen:

"I never said it," and added an explanation that his remark grew out of an announcement concerning the manager of one of his hotel properties.

"All I said about Rigney was that I expected Fred (Haney, Angels' general manager) would probably have something to announce within a few days."

Swimmers Win Meet, 482-72

The powerful San Rafael Swim Club completed its 1965 dual meet season Wednesday by trouncing the Hamilton AFB Voodoos 482-72.

The two clubs will now prepare for the Redwood Empire Swim League championships at College of Marin pool Sept. 25-26, which will have the Tamalpais Swim Club, the Ann Curtis Swim Club, the Marin Pirates, the Santa Rosa Neptunes and six other clubs from as far north as Ukiah.

The San Rafael and Santa Rosa teams tied for the league dual meet title with 5-1 records. Santa Rosa beat San Rafael but lost to the Marin Pirates.

Raiders, Broncs Clash; Big Game For Cannon

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Tonight's exhibition clash between the Oakland Raiders and the Denver Broncos may be a turning point in the illustrious career of Billy Cannon.

The former Heisman Trophy winner and one of the greatest college halfbacks in history is worried that he may be cut from the Raider squad.

Cannon, the star on Louisiana State's national championship team of 1959, was a No. 1 collegiate draft choice, finally signing with the Houston Oilers. He led the Oilers to two AFL championships before he was beset by ankle injuries in 1962 and 1963.

Oakland received Cannon in an exchange for three players last year. But the former backfield ace will be starting at end instead of at his normal position.

"If Coach (Al) Davis wants me at end it's fine with me," Cannon says. "Regardless of who you are, this is a business. It's a way of making a livelihood, but you have to realize you can get the ax anywhere."

Tonight's final pre-season American Football League game between the two clubs will be held in the 21,000-capacity Hughes Stadium on the Sacramento City College campus.

It's the second 1965 exhibition contest between the squads. The Broncos beat the Raiders in an Aug. 14 exhibition game at Salt Lake City, 27-17.

In that game, the Broncos scored twice in the last quarter, with the key play a sparkling 76-yard touchdown pass from Denver quarterback Mickey Slaughter to Hewitt Dixon with just over three minutes left in the game.

Oakland is 2-2 in pre-season play, while Denver is 1-3. And both clubs lost last week — Oakland being swamped by San Diego, 46-17, and the Broncos losing to Houston, 25-3.

Mumps Have Hit Patriots Camp

ANDOVER, Mass. (UPI) — Mumps has hit the Boston Patriot training camp.

Defensive captain Tom Addison was admitted to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Boston yesterday with a case, the second case to hit the club in a motnh.

Youngsters Tie At Las Gallinas

Brant Morowski and Bob Krambs tied for low net honors yesterday in the Las Gallinas junior golf tourney. Morowski shot a 38-8—30 and Krambs had a 43-13—30.

Ray Leach Fourth In State Golf

Ray Leach of Novato finished in fourth place in the California State Junior Golf championships yesterday on Napa's Silverado course.

Leach shot a final round of 79, his worst of four rounds, to fall from second to fourth in the final standings. He had ended up in a third place tie with Lyle Wehrman of Diablo but lost the first hole of a sudden death playoff for the third spot.

Wayne Palessiro of Ontario, San Bernadino County, leader throughout the tourney, finished on top with a total of 290 strokes. His final round yesterday was 76, after shooting previous rounds of 71, 70, and 73. Leach, the 15-year-old boy out of Indian Valley Golf Club, had rounds of 72, 71, and 73 and a final 79 for a 295 total, five strokes behind the winner.

Don Hawken of San Rafael, recent winner of the Northern California Junior Golf title, shot a final round of 76 for a 304, out of the money.

Wininger Clings To Slim Lead

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Big game hunter Bo Wininger turned killer on the golf course yesterday, fighting off challenges by PGA champion Dave Marr and former PGA champion Bobby Nichols to cling to a one-stroke lead in the $65,000 Oklahoma City Open.

Wininger, 42, is an infrequent participant on the tour, but he coolly turned back all charges with a two-under-par 70, giving him a 139 total, five under par at the midway mark.

On an African safari last year, the handsome, graying Wininger, killed, among other things, an elephant and a rhinoceros.

The game yesterday was less final — no one was killed — but Marr, who shot a 69 for a 140 total, and Nichols, who went from contender to also-ran on one hole, must have felt shell-shocked.

Marr, playing in the three-some just behind Wininger and Nichols, applied the pressure throughout the second round and pulled abreast of the Las Vegas, Nev., pro briefly when he birdied the 12th hole.

But Marr three-putted the next hole, taking a double bogey, and never got closer than one stroke after that.

Nichols, who won the 1964 PGA crown, was in strong contention, just two shots back, when he took an awful eight on the tricky No. 17, a 469-yard par-four hole, and finished at 74 to fall six strokes back.

Penalties totaling three shots put Nichols in deep trouble and he three-putted for the eight.

Nichols, who took a double bogey six on the same hole Thursday, later asked disgustedly: "Do you realize I could be five under par instead of one over if I could just learn to play that hole?"

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, recovering from an opening 75, shot a two-under-par 70 to match Nichols' 145 total.

Only eight of the 139 golfers owned sub-par scores at the 36-hole mark.

Randy Glover, a 23-year-old pro from Florence, S.C., cruised to a three-under-par 69 to take over third place with a 142.

Tom Aaron, Phil Rodgers, Dave Hill, Johnny Pott, and Jack Rule, all at 143, possessed the only other below par totals.

Host pro Ernie Vossler and Jim Ferriell Jr., tied for second behind Wininger after the first day, carded a 77 and 76, respectively, Friday to drop far back.

The field was pared to the top 72 scorers, of which 68 were professionals.

FREESE DIDN'T FREEZE—Gene Freese of the Chicago White Sox didn't stand still on this low inside pitch from Minnesota's Jim Kaat during the first inning of last night's game in Minneapolis-St. Paul. Twins Whip Chisox 6-4; A's In 'Cellar-Braytion'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Kansas City Athletics have beaten the Minnesota Twins to the punch.

The Twins took another step toward a champagne celebration last night by whipping Chicago 6-4 and increasing their American League lead over the White Sox to 7½ games but the A's got there first when owner Charles Finley uncorked his long-awaited "cellar-braytion."

The occasion was a 4-1, 1-0 doubleheader sweep at Los Angeles that lifted the A's past Boston and out of the American League cellar for the first time since April.

It was a surprise — the party. As the players trotted into the dressing room after the game, the champagne began to flow and Finley toasted his players:

"Congratulations, on making this our happiest night of the year."

Then he handed out something more substantial, giving each player $25 for a steak dinner and lifting the curfew.

There was only one flaw in the proceedings. Charley O, the Mule, couldn't be there to cellar-bray.

The New York Yankees knocked Boston to the bottom of the league by walloping the Red Sox 9-0, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 3-0 and Detroit clubbed Washington 10-2.

Tony Oliva and Don Mincher got the job done for the Twins. Oliva singled home two runs in the first inning, Mincher hit a two-run homer in the third and Oliva wrapped up the scoring with another two-run single in the sixth. John Romano and Ken Berry homered for the White Sox.

Oliva who went 3-for-3, has eight hits in 11 trips since returning to the line-up and has lifted his batting average nine points to .320. He now trails Boston's Carl Yastrzemski by only four points in the battle for the AL batting championship.

John Wyatt preserved both A's victories, sealing the champagne party when he took over for Lew Krausse in the eighth inning of the nightcap and put down a mild Angels' threat. Kansas City scored in the second inning on a single by Tom Reynolds and on Bill Bryan's double.

Wyatt also completed a six-hit job in the opener, following Dick Joyce and Tom Aker to the mound. Ed Charles gave the A's the runs they needed with a homer and a run-producing bunt single.

Al Downing shackled the Red Sox on five hits — four of the infield variety — while the Yankees tagged Bill Monbouquette with his 17th loss against eight victories. Horace Clarke, just up from Toledo, spiced a seven-run New York explosion in the sixth inning with a pair of singles.

The Orioles capitalized on the wildness of Indians' rookie Steve Hargan, making the most of three walks and a wild pitch for four first inning runs. Brooks Robinson singled in one run, another crossed on the wild pitch and two more came home on Dick Brown's single. Wally Bunker got the victory, his first since July 18.

The Tigers got the job done with a four-homer salvo by Norm Cash, Willie Horton, Bill Freehan and Mickey Stanley. Hank Aguirre was tagged for homers by Ken McMullen and Woodie Held but got the victory for a 13-9 record.

Big Names At Forest Hills Will Quit Amateur Tennis

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — This is Auld Lang Syne for some old familiar faces in the National Tennis Championships at the West Side Tennis Club — Nicola Pietrangeli, Rafael Osuna, Manuel Santana and possibly Roy Emerson, Fred Stolle and Dennis Ralston.

The 32-year-old Pietrangeli, for 10 years one of Italy's best, probably will turn pro after this tournament, finding that the amateur circuit no longer offers the glamor and fun it once did.

Pro offers have been made also to Stolle, Australia's No. 2 ace behind Emerson, and Santana, the Spanish clay court whiz who battered U.S. Davis Cup hopes in Barcelona recently.

Stolle says he is interested and will listen to propositions after the Davis Cup Challenge Round in December.

Santana is hesitant. "I have too good a job," he said, referring to a position with an American tobacco firm.

Pro or amateur, Santana is certain to quit big time tennis, as will his pal, Osuna.

"This is definitely my last year," Osuna said. "I am sure it is also Santana's last year." Osuna has a marketing job in Caracas, Venezuela.

Emerson, bidding for his third U.S. title, has repeatedly hinted that he may quit the amateur tour to devote more attention to his home life and his job, with the same tobacco company which employs Santana.

Ralston, hurt by criticism of his falldown in the recent interzone Davis Cup final in Spain, has indicated he, too, is contemplating semi-retirement.

"I don't want tennis to be my life," he said.

"If all these guys step out, it will really open things up," said Frank Froehling III of Coral Gables, Fla., a member of the U.S. Cup team.

But Froehling and the others must contend with them at least one more time in these championships, the 50th played on the West Side Club courts.

Emerson, the top-heavy favorite, makes his debut today against Eduardo Zuleta of Ecuador. Santana, No. 4, faces Don Fontana of Canada.

Stolle, seeded second, opened his campaign with a 9-7, 6-2, 7-5 victory over Ed Newman of San Antonio, Tex. Ralston, No. 3, crushed Jim Hobson, a University of Southern California student from Fullerton, Calif., 6-0, 6-3, 6-2.

Pietrangeli, unseeded, had to rally for a triumph over Mark Cox of Britain, 9-7, 6-2, 7-5. Osuna, seeded sixth, beat Brenton Higgins of Australia, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5. South Africa's Cliff Drysdale, No. 8, ousted Bob Lutz of Los Angeles 6-2, 6-1, 6-2.

Maria Bueno, defending champion in the women's division, crushed Mrs. Anne Bedard of Canada 6-2, 6-0. Her chief rival, Margaret Smith of Australia, doesn't play until Sunday.

Vikes Rip Dallas

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't try to tell Minnesota Coach Norm Van Brocklin there's a better quarterback in professional football than the Vikings' rambling scrambler, Fran Tarkenton.

He's liable to show you the film of last night's 57-17 romp against Dallas.

Van Brocklin, who was quite a signal caller himself, before retiring to coach the Vikings, is Tarkenton's number one booster and the scrambler gave him plenty to rave about against the Cowboys.

Tarkenton threw two touchdown passes and piloted a Minnesota attack that gained 210 yards through the air and 198 on the ground. The Vikings' defense pitched in with six interceptions.

The impromptu Tarkenton scrambles sometime keep Van Brocklin on the edge of the Vikings' bench but the coach admits: "When it works, it's great. When it comes up third and -40, I let Francis call the next play."

St. Louis intercepted four Rudy Bukich passes and whipped Chicago 25-3 in last night's other National Football League exhibition game.

Jim Bakken booted three field goals as the Cardinals won their first pre-season game after two losses and a tie. Chicago lost its second in four starts.

New York's new quarterback, Earl Morrall, starts against his former teammates, the Detroit Lions, in the first game of tonight's NFL doubleheader at Cleveland. The defending champion Browns face Western Division contender Green Bay in the second game, with 80,000 fans expected.

Baltimore plays Washington at Norfolk, Va., and Pittsburgh meets San Francisco at Providence, R.I. in other NFL tests today. Philadelphia is at Los Angeles tomorrow.

In the American League, Denver meets Oakland at Sacramento, Calif. Boston is at Kansas City and San Diego plays Houston at Little Rock, in night games.

Morrall has had just four days to learn the Giant play book but he'll be at the controls for Allie Sherman's club. Guard Darrell Dess, who went to Detroit in the Morrall trade will start for the Lions. Detroit has dropped three straight exhibitions and New York is 1-2.

The Browns have enjoyed a good exhibition season, winning four straight. They'll start Erich Barnes, who came from New York as part of the Morrall trade, in the defensive secondary.

Green Bay hopes to bounce back after a 21-12 loss to Dallas last week. That was only the Packers' fifth pre-season loss in 34 games under Coach Vince Lombardi.

Baltimore, 3-0, has displayed a hefty defense allowing just one touchdown. Washington, 2-2, has lost its two games by a total of only five points and could be tough.

Longtime Philadelphia star Tommy McDonald, now with the Rams, will start against his former teammates in Los Angeles tomorrow. The eagles have split four exhibitions while Los Angeles is 2-1.

Boston will be out to snap a 15-game exhibition losing streak but will be without linebacker Tom Addison, down with a case of the mumps. Gino Cappelletti and Art Graham have recovered from injuries and are expected to start.

Houston will be without sophomore flash Sid Blanks while the Chargers two top runners, Paul Lowe and Keith Lincoln also are hurt.

British Golfers Take Lead In Walker Cup

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — American amateur golfers, routed by the British in the opening skirmish, needed a comeback bordering on the miraculous today to avoid losing the 1965 Walker Cup battle.

There was a point riding on each of the 12 matches and the British revolutionaries had to snag only four to nail down their second victory in 20 cracks at the coveted cup

The invaders from England, Scotland and Ireland, predominantly on the youthful side compared with the Yanks, bolted to an 8-3 advantage in the first round of foring yesterday.

The United States was in not quite as bad a situation in 1963, latest of the biennial contests, when it trailed 6-3 on the first day and rallied to win 12-8.

Its strength then was in the doubles, in which each member of a team takes a turn hitting the ball. The U.S. won six of the eight matches and tied another, for which no point was scored.

This year's squad from across the Atlantic copped two of the four doubles, tied a third and slaughtered the defenders 6-2 in the singles. They haven't prevailed in the doubles since 1938, when they won possession of the Walker Cup for the first and only time so far.

"We got every break in the books," said Joe Carr, the Irish captain, of the first round results, "Not that we weren't due it."

He described his team as the "youngest, keenest, and fittest" in his 10 times as a Walker Cupper. The 43-year-old Carr benched himself to concentrate on youth.

A pair of youngsters, 18-year-old Peter Townsend and 20-year-old Clive Clark, were among the brightest stars of the British uprising.

Townsend teamed with 26-year-old Ronnie Shade to score a point in the doubles and Clark, with British Amateur champion Mike Bonallack, battled to a standoff.

In the singles, Townsend unleashed a flourish of four birdies on the first nine holes in routing the veteran of U.S. and international amateur competition, 43-year-old Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., by a score of 3 and 2.

Clark had an even easier time against Mark Hopkins, 22-year-old Texan, finishing him off in 15 holes, 5 up.

The defending U.S. Amateur champion, Bill Campbell of Huntington, W.Va., and a former titleholder, Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., salvaged the only singles points made by the Americans.

Campbell, shooting four under par for the 13 holes he had to play, polished off Bonallack 6 and 5 while Beman was 2 up over Rodney Foster.

Carr attributed the British success to physical fitness as much as superb golf.

"We did what we never did before, finished well," he said. "That's where we've fallen down in this country in the past."

He suggested six weeks ago to his colleagues that they do a lot of running as well as practice, aware that the heat and humidity of the United States summer in contrast to the cooler British Isles took a lot out of strangers.

But the weather the past week while they practiced and for the opening round was dry, pleasant and sunny with the temperatures no higher than 80.

MARICHAL THREATENED

Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants, shown here signing his autograph for a young admiring Philadelphia fan, received a letter from a less admiring fan, it was disclosed yesterday. It was an unsigned, threatening letter and prompted Federal Bureau of Investigation agents to patrol the Wrigley Field stands yesterday during the Giants-Chicago Cubs game. Neither Marichal nor Giants manager Herman Franks would disclose the contents of the letter. (AP Wirephoto)

FRIDAY'S SPORTS IN BRIEF
By The Associated Press

GOLF

BALTIMORE, Md. — Great Britain took a commanding 8-3 lead over the United States in Walker Cup play.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — Bo Wininger shot a two-under-par 70 for a two-round total of 139 and a one stroke lead in the Oklahoma City Open.

TENNIS

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Third-seeded Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., scored a 6-0, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Jim Hobson of Fullerton, Calif., as the National Tennis Championships opened.

AUTO RACING

DARLINGTON, S.C. — Cale Yarborough averaged 137.271 miles per hour as 16 more drivers qualified for the Labor Day Southern 500.

RACING

CHICAGO — King's Table, $5, charged from the rear of the pack and won the Shutout Invitational Handicap at Arlington Park.

NEW YORK — Come Hither, $74.60, romped to an upset victory in the Bee Mac Purse at Aqueduct.

ATLANTIC CITY — Salute Steve, $9.40, won the feature at Atlantic City.

DEL MAR, Calif. — Parris, $5.20, came from behind and won the feature at Del Mar.

Young Skipper Repeats As Sailing Champ

RYE, N.Y. (AP) — Robert Doyle, 16-year-old skipper from Marblehead, Mass., won the North American Junior Sailing Championship for the second straight year Thursday on Long Island Sound.

Doyle clinched the title with a victory, his fourth in the eight-race series, in the second of three races that wound up the regatta in light to moderate northwest breezes. Doyle, with crewmen Robert McCann and Bruce Atkins, both 17, captured the Sears Bowl with a point total of 58, 16½ points ahead of runner-up Edward Butler of San Diego, Calif.

Tillman Wins Yacht Title

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — For Air Force Capt. Richard Tillman, the wild blue yonder is likely to be water.

Tillman, taking time off from the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, Ohio, added the National Finn Class sailboat title yesterday to the North American Finn crown he won earlier in the year.

Gals Tie For Low Gross—89

Mrs. Robert Sills toured Marin Country Club in 89 Thursday and Mrs. G. C. Davenport did the same for low gross scores at the women's guest day action.

Mrs. William Sichel took Class A, however, with 90-17-73. Mrs. Sills had 89-14-75 for second and Mrs. Davenport had 89-13-76 for third. Mrs. E. J. Navellier won Class B with 92-18-74. Three women tied for second with identical scores of 94-19-75: Mrs. V. L. Verdellet, Mrs. R. E. Ellis and Mrs. Charles Gondak.

Mrs. Gondak won the hole-in-one competition with a miss of 33 inches. Mrs. Alex Jeon, Class D winner, had the low net with 95-23-72. Mrs. Leon Balshone took Class C with 97-21-76.

B-H Builders In Crucial; Merchants Host Pacifica

What do the Chicago White Sox and Billings-Hutchison Builders have in common? They are both pennant contenders who get their last, big chance this weekend.

While the Sox are playing American League-leading Minnesota, the Builders play two games with the Santa Rosa Elks, who lead the Bay Area Semi-Pro League by a game and a half but are losing many of their players to college.

The Builders get a bit of a schedule break in that they get Santa Rosa at Albert Field, San Rafael, at 8 tonight before journeying to Santa Rosa for a 1 p.m. engagement tomorrow. B-H manager Joe Anselmo plans to start Dick Descalso tonight and Bob DeRosa tomorrow.

Santa Rosa has a 7-1 record, with the two games this weekend and one with the Mill Valley Merchants remaining. Because of the exodus of some of his players, the Elk manager persuaded the Merchants to play that game Monday. It will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Project 17, Mill Valley.

The Merchants (4-4) also play tomorrow, hosting Pacifica (2-7) at Project 17 at 1:30. Manager Bob Selna of Mill Valley says he will start Keith Fraser tomorrow and Frank Burch against the Elks.

Billings-Hutchison is tied for second at 6-3 with the Husteads team, Husteads plays the disappointing Gino Benedetti team tomorrow, and has a game with Mill Valley to make up. Billings-Hutchison must win both games with Santa Rosa to retain a shot at the pennant; but for Husteads to tie Santa Rosa, they must win their last two and Santa Rosa must lose any two of its last three.

The advantage here must lie with B-H, for they can do the job themselves. They had better; it's the last chance they will get.

Marin Gridders At S.F. State

Two transfers from College of Marin and a former Terra Linda High School player are candidates for the San Francisco State College football varsity this year.

The ex-Tars are tackle Lyle Baucom and Charles Collett. Former Terra Linda quarterback Richard Schultze is trying to step up from the Gator freshman team.

Ace Qualifier

A recent hole-in-one by Bret Porter of 28 Ridgewood Road, San Rafael, which he registered at the Marin Country Club, may win for him a trip for two to Scotland and $1,000. He is entered in the Old Smuggler hole-in-one competition.

Winnipeg Picks Up Two NFL Discards

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP)—The Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League's Western Conference have signed two players cut by National Football League teams.

The Blue Bombers signed tackle Monty Kiffin, cut by Minnesota, and lineman Mario Mariani, dropped by the Washington Redskins, yesterday.

Catholics Purchase Land Near College

The Catholic Archdiocese of San Francisco announced today it has purchased a 6,500-square-foot piece of property nearly in the front yard of College of Marin.

The property, which borders the campus near the intersection of College Avenue and Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, will house headquarters for the college's Catholic student group, the Newman Club.

Brother Nicholas Kurguz of the Dominican Priory, the club's assistant chaplain, said the property, which previously housed the College Market, was purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Mindle of 1115 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield, for $35,000.

The Newman Club was founded on the Marin campus in January, 1965, and has been meeting at the Dominican Priory or homes of the members since that time.

Brother Nicholas said he was looking for a permanent home for the club when, in late August, he saw a "for lease" sign on the building. He said he phoned the Mindles and found they would sell the property.

The property includes a barber shop, which Brother Nicholas said will continue to be rented out to provide funds for the building's maintenance.

He said he plans to begin a fund-raising drive in the county to finance construction of a new building on the site. Meantime, the club will use the former market quarters.

The Newman Club had 90 members on the College of Marin campus last year, according to Brother Nicholas. There are Newman Clubs on college and university campuses throughout the country, he said.

The purpose of the clubs, stated in their constitution, is: "To deepen the spiritual and enrich the temporal lives of its members through a balanced program of religious, intellectual and social activities."

East-West Marin Route Session Set

A three-member committee of the planning commission studying the West Marin Master Plan has scheduled a hearing on Route 17 (the East-West route across Marin) for 8 p.m., Sept. 13 at the Civic Center.

About 100 invitations to cities, improvement clubs and other organizations have been mailed by the county planning department. In fact, they have been mailed twice.

The notices sent yesterday incorrectly said the meeting would be on a Wednesday, due to an error by one of the clerks. The 13th is a Monday. New notices went in the mail today.

Hugh Dougherty, chairman of the committee, called the session because of the high importance of route location to the master plan and development of West Marin.

The state division of highways, which has been studying routes for many months, still has made no recommendation.

Greek Youngster, 8, Financially Adopted

Malinda Schulze of Tiburon has financially "adopted" an 8-year-old Greek boy, Constantinos Garavelos, through the Foster Parents Plan, Inc.

The youngster is son of a widowed charwoman who makes $16.67 a month. They live in Lamia, in central Greece.

Hero Pilot Now Faces CAB Blame

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last Dec. 30, airline Captain W. M. Wade was hailed as a hero for landing a Convair 340 safely with 41 passengers aboard after both engines failed.

Yesterday, the Civil Aeronautics Board blamed him for the engine failure. It said the reason both engines failed was the pilot's "mismanagement of the fuel system and inattention to fuel supply."

The landing was made in a plowed field near Saugus, Calif., while the United Air Lines plane was enroute from Fresno to Los Angeles. Both engines stopped and Wade executed a wheels-up landing so skillful that only two passengers received minor injuries.

Man's Image Is Topic

The concept of man as being made in the image of God will be discussed in the Bible lesson-sermons at Christian Science churches in Marin County tomorrow.

Frozen Meat Selling Drawing Complaints

The state public health department has been receiving an increasing number of complaints during the last six months from customers of frozen meat lockers who do not end up buying what they went shopping for.

James Bell, chief of the Food and Drug Inspection Bureau of the department in Berkeley, said that it is difficult to pin down anything illegal about the operations.

The firms usually advertise a United States Department of Agriculture "good" grade of meat at a low price, around 25 cents a pound. When customers are drawn by such an advertisement, however, salesmen make a strong effort to sell them a higher grade meat at a price that may not be a bargain.

As long as the dealer has on hand the grade of meat advertised, it is not possible to make a case, Bell said.

The method seems to be most prevalent in Sacramento and Richmond, but there have been complaints throughout the state. He said there is one complaint under investigation in Marin, but would not identify the firm.

He said his inspectors often watch newspaper advertising, being able to recognize the operation from the prices offered. Many inspections are made on the basis of such ads, he said.

Bell said the operation seems to have replaced an earlier sales pitch designed to induce customers to buy a plan. This included the sale of unusual cuts of meat and other foods not ordinarily purchased by the average housewife.

Charge Of Theft Is Amended To Joyriding

Lorne Harvey Dolan, 20, pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to an amended complaint of joyriding and was given a 30-day sentence in county jail.

He originally was charged with felony theft of the car of Richard A. Simmons of 110 Sycamore Avenue, Mill Valley, when the vehicle was parked at Food King store, 393 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley, on Aug. 26.

Dolan, of 20 Washington Park Avenue, Mill Valley, allegedly caused the car to blow out a tire, struck a station wagon, and then crashed into Walt's at 384 Miller Avenue, breaking a window.

Judge Leonard A. Thomas also ordered that restitution be made.

High, Low

NEW YORK (UPI) — The highest temperature reported to the U.S. Weather Bureau Friday, excluding Hawaii and Alaska, was 103 at Blythe and Imperial, both in California. The lowest temperature reported today was 32 at Baker, Ore., Idaho Falls, Ore., and Pocatello, Idaho.

Italy Storm Slackens Off

ROME (AP) — A bright sun broke through storm clouds today, bringing relief to much of Italy after three days of storms that took a toll of almost 100 dead and missing.

But swollen rivers continued to cause concern and floods still disrupted the country's life.

Guards mounted watches on the banks of major rivers, although late reports indicated such giants as the Po in the north and the Tiber at Rome were beginning to drop.

SUPERINTENDENT
THE CITY OF TIBURON
The City of Tiburon is accepting applications from a qualified man to become Superintendent of Construction and Maintenance. A qualified person must be familiar with all practical phases of paving, drainage, construction, gardening, painting and other public works operations.

Initially, the Superintendent will be required to perform most routine maintenance tasks himself. He must also be able to establish a heavier maintenance program for assignment to contract crews, and to supervise and inspect their work. He will have to organize and supervise additional personnel of the department as they are employed.

A qualified person must be familiar with grading and excavation and be able to inspect such works on public and private property and issue permits.

He should be familiar with the operation of construction equipment; be able to read plans and specifications; be familiar with engineering principles and surveying practices.

A beginning salary of $600 per month is offered. A retirement system and health insurance will soon be established, together with the usual benefits of vacation, sick leave and holidays. APPLICATION FORMS MAY BE OBTAINED BY WRITING TO P. O. BOX 424, TIBURON, CALIFORNIA, OR BY CALLING 435-0956.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Lucy To Be Guest On Lawrence Series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Lucille Ball is the guest star on the premiere of CBS-TV's Steve Lawrence variety series Sept. 13 . . . NBC - TV is reported planning a documentary about Mary Martin . . . There's talk of a possible Phil Silvers series about a chauffeur who runs his wealthy employers the way the comedian's former "Sgt. Bilko" character ran his colonel . . . Sid Caesar, meanwhile, is said to have his eye on a series that would be based on the movie "The Mouse That Roared" . . . and Robert Goulet is reported hoping to do do a weekly dramatic show about Allied counter-espionage in Germany in World War II . . . Richard Nixon is interviewed on NBC - TV's "Meet The Press" Sept. 12.

Add Headliners: Robert Lansing, who was dropped as star of ABC - TV's "12 O'Clock High" series amid much fan protest, will formally disappear from that show on its Sept. 13 season premiere when the character he played (a general) is killed — but not on camera . . . On Sept. 15, meanwhile, Lansing will turn up on the season premiere of NBC-TV's "The Virginian" in a guest role . . . Jack Paar, who quit his NBC - TV series last season, and who now owns a television station in Poland Springs, Me., will introduce the Tuesday night movies he shows on his own outlet . . . he has also agreed to be host of a David Wolper special about the history of political humor.

Show Business: A trade report has it that a return visit by Mae West to CBS-TV's "Mr. Ed" program failed to come off because she wanted to be portrayed as a sex symbol and the brilliant souls who run the series didn't agree . . . Which reminds one of Miss West's answer to questions of whether she could cook: "Nobody ever asked me" . . . Danny Thomas, who heads a group granted an American Football League franchise in Miami, will have no network loyalty conflict: He does his specials for NBC - TV, which also broadcasts the league's games . . . Roger Moore, who stars in the popular syndicated series, "The Saint," told an interviewer that when he joined the old "Maverick" western, near its end, "I thought my lines were sounding familiar. Then I realized we were using old 'Alaskan' scripts. They'd changed the names, but all the dialogue was identical."

Business Licenses On Agenda

The Mill Valley City Council will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in city hall to introduce a new business license ordinance.

The ordinance will lower the license fee from $36 to $24 for business grossing under $15,000 a year, and will raise the fee by $2 to $38 a year for merchants doing from $15,000 to $25,000 gross business a year.

It changes an original proposal to increase all business fees by $12.

The council also has on its agenda a request for stop signs on Azalea Drive at Hollyhock and Aster courts and the proposed flood control project for Arroyo Corte Madera Del Presidio Creek.

The council moved its meeting night back a day because of Monday's holiday.

Hamilton Wing Given Honors

Two honors, one for aid to Northern Californians during last winter's floods, went this week to the 349th Troop Carrier Wing, a reserve unit based at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Both were presented to wing officers during a Tactical Air Command commanders conference at Forbes Air Force Base, Kans.

One was a certificate of appreciation for outstanding contribution to community relations, based on the airlifting of food, equipment, medical supplies and mail to the flooded area.

The other honor was a 12th Air Force flying safety award. The wing has flown more than 110,000 accident-free hours since July 9, 1960.

Kol Shofar Sets Holy Day Rites

The Congregation Kol Shofar has announced services in Marin for the approaching Jewish High Holy Days.

The services will be conducted by Rabbi Morris Schussheim and Cantor Max Feder at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 1618 Mission Avenue, San Rafael, on Rosh Hashanah Eve, Sept. 26; Rosh Hashanah, Sept. 26 and 27; Yom Kippur Eve, Oct. 5, and Yom Kippur, Oct. 6.

A Selichot service will be held at the center Sept. 18 at 11 p.m., preceded by a snack.

Since 1890 the American republics have held 10 inter-American conferences.

Teacher Aide Plan To Resume

The teacher aide program, instigated last school year at Marin City's Manzanita School, will be resumed this year and is proposed to be expanded to include Central and Bayside schools.

Aims of the program are to relieve the teacher of small tasks so she may do the job for which she is qualified and to help inspire a positive approach to learning through stressing individual worth.

Last year, 15 southern Marin women took part. Anyone interested in being an aide this fall should call Mrs. Alma Wells of 26 Dutton Court, Marin City, or Central School principal Alfred L. Anderson.

Home Rule Appears Certainty For D.C.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Home rule for the District of Columbia appeared a certainty today. The only question was whether it would come this year or next.

House members, prodded by President Johnson, pulled the long-stalled bill out of a committee yesterday. The Senate has already passed the bill, and House action could come on Sept. 27, if Congress is still in session. If not by then, the House could act next January.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Amebic Disease Is U.S. Heritage From China's Boxer Rebellion

VAN DELLEN

During the Boxer uprising, our troops in China were warned against cholera and other tropical infections, such as bubonic plague. Most of them escaped these conditions but brought back amebic dysentry, which is now prevalent in this country.

Certain varieties of ameba are harmless and live in the intestinal tract without endangering health. The histolytica type is the troublemaker. The cysts of these parasites are expelled from the body and transmitted to others via contaminated food or drink. This occurs to fruits and vegetables fertilized with human excreta, by flies exposed to the same type of excrement, or by infected food handlers. Water contaminated by sewage was the source of infection in one of our large cities in 1933. Faulty plumbing was responsible for 1,400 known cases and more than 100 deaths. A subtle cross-connection of pipes was blamed for an epidemic in another city 20 years later.

THE AMEBA settles in the colon and forms ulcers along the inner lining. The symptoms are variable. Many victims are not bothered but are called "carriers" in the sense that they are a source of infection to others. Others have vague abdominal distress, aching, weakness, and irritability. Diarrhea is common but not constant. The dysentery form of the disease, with cramping and bloody stools, is seen so seldom that the name has been changed from amebic dysentery to amebiasis.

The diagnosis is made when the causative cysts are found in stool specimens. As many as six tests may be needed before the critters are found.

Emetine is a time-honored remedy that relieves the symptom but does not eliminate the infection. Diodoquin, Carbarsone, or tetracycline is used for this purpose. Now and then the amebae are difficult to eliminate and several courses of treatment are needed, including the use of oral amebacides.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

ALCOHOL AND HEARING

M. B. writes: I would like to know if a person who is deaf in one ear can drink wine and whisky. Someone told me that people who are hard of hearing are not supposed to drink. Any truth in this?

REPLY

Alcohol does not aggravate hearing loss unless the deafness is caused by an alcoholic neuritis or congestion of the adenoid tissues that surround the opening of the eustachian tube. On the other hand, over-indulgence may lead to other complications.

PICA

D. K. writes: My grandchild eats paper like candy. She wets it and then swallows it. The doctor said this will not harm her. Could she be lacking something in her diet?

REPLY

No. Many children have perverted appetites (pica) that disappear in time. Be thankful she prefers paper to cigarette butts or chips of lead paint.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

T. T. writes: Is myocardial infarct the same as coronary thrombosis?

REPLY

One follows the other. A myocardial infarct is the lesion that develops in the heart muscle after it is robbed of its circulation by plugging of a coronary artery. In this respect, thrombosis is the cause and the infarct is the effect.

FOOT DEFECT

B. N. writes: My baby was born with a clubfoot. Can this deformity be corrected?

REPLY

Yes. Ask your physician to refer you to a competent orthopedist.

Today's Health Hint — Avoid wild, unfamiliar plants, including berries and mushrooms.

Arrow Whizzes, Four Arrested

CHICO (AP)—A hunting arrow whizzed past the head of Goree McDaniel, 51, Friday night as he and four other Negroes were tidying up the Faith Temple Church of God. The arrow imbedded itself in a wall.

Today four white men were arrested and held in the city jail for investigation of assault with intent to murder.

McDaniel told police he knew of no motive.

Sheriff's Sgt. Ray Baxter said a bow and a quiver of arrows was found in the home of William W. Sorrels, 33, one of the arrested four.

DIAMONDS IN THE NIGHT

Tamalpais Valley Methodist Church at Ash Street and Marin Avenue has its first cross. The eight-foot, 35-pound aluminum cross was constructed by L. A. Post, church lay leader, shown installing it this week. Electrical contractor Post says the cross has thousands of tiny, 1/8 inch holes which, when lighted at night, resemble diamonds. It is filled with a solution to let light through but keep water out. The cross was paid for from a memorial fund in honor of the late Mrs. Melvina Mitchell.

Congregations Asked To Help United Fund

An interfaith committee of religious leaders has designated the Sept. 17-19 weekend as the time for all church congregations in the five Bay Area counties to focus attention on the United Crusade.

The six - member committee issued a statement urging "full participation in the campaign through voluntary services and generous contributions of money."

It said many United Crusade-financed health, welfare and youth agencies operate under the auspices of religious groups.

"Love of neighbor, concern for others in distress, care for the sick and helpless—these principles are common to all religions," it said.

The statement was signed by Most Rev. Floyd L. Begin, Roman Catholic bishop of Oakland; Judge Joseph Kennedy, president of the San Francisco Council of Churches; Most Rev. Joseph T. McGucken, Roman Catholic archbishop of San Francisco; Rev. Lloyd K. Wake, president of the San Francisco Clergy Forum; Rev. Paul Yinger, president of the Oakland Council of Churches, and Dr. John J. Zucker, president of the Northern California Board of Rabbis.

The United Bay Area Crusade campaign officially begins Sept. 27 with an objective of collecting $15,155,885 in Marin, Alameda, Contra Costa, San Francisco and San Mateo Counties.

REV. JOHN ROTTO

Pastor Quits Fairfax Post To Go Home

Pastor John Rotto of Christ the Victor Lutheran Church in Fairfax has announced his resignation, effective the end of this month.

Rev. Rotto came to Fairfax in 1960 when there was no congregation and no church building. Services then were held in the Fairfax Theater. The church now has about 350 members.

Rev. Rotto was instrumental in the organization of the Marin Institute on Alcoholism, 745 B Street, San Rafael, and has been chairman of its board of directors since it was formed in January. He plans to tender his resignation when directors meet Wednesday.

He is leaving to become pastor of Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Valley City, in his native North Dakota.

Carl Jach, 24, student assistant at Christ the Victor, will serve as interim pastor until a new one is found. Jach is a Minnesota native and a graduate of Wartburg Seminary, Dubuque, Iowa.

Priest Offers Folk Music As Worship Form

SAN FRANCISCO(AP) — "Man, this is a swinging parish," said the guitar - playing Episcopal priest as he strummed from his own composition, "The American Folk Song Mass."

Rev. Ian D. Mitchell was performing before an audience in the parish hall of San Francisco's Church of the Advent, sometimes called the most traditional of all Episcopal churches in the Bay Area.

Father Mitchell, 38, a graduate of the Episcopal seminary in Nashotah, Wis., sang and strummed in folk music style from the Mass, based on the Book of Common Prayer.

"My soul doth magnify the Lord and my spirit hath rejoiced in God my Savior," he sang.

The priest said that the folk Mass has been produced now in half a dozen major cities and is intended for guitar, bass, banjos and chorus.

"I tried to bring in the style of the hills, of Negro spirituals and some of the sounds of the plains—and to fuse it all into something worthwhile as an offering to God of the people and their music," he said.

"I don't separate religion from life at all," the priest said of his view of the role of the church and the clergy in society.

He studied trombone and musical composition three and one-half years before entering the seminary.

Glare Of Publicity Follows President Even To Church

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon B. Johnson may be expected to worship with more frequency in the privacy of his family either at the White House, Camp David or on his ranch in Texas.

The chief executive is a devout man. His denomination, Disciples of Christ sometimes known as the Christian Church, is not as formal or as ritualistic as many other faiths and follows the tenets of individual faith rather than mass approach to religion.

Johnson's upbringing in the simplicity of his faith is enough to make him cringe at the sight of crowds which inevitably develop around any church where any President worships.

In his mind, he has tried to blame some of these crowds on reporters and photographers who attempt to cover any movement of a Chief Executive in public. But this theory falls apart when the President eludes the press corps successfully and arrives at a church with no fanfare or advance notice.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON
Seeks quiet worship

The White House limousines and accompanying Secret Service vehicles would attract attention in front of any church in the world. Their crowd-pulling attraction is even more pronounced in smaller towns near Camp David or the Johnson ranch in Texas.

Thus, the President emerges from church to find anywhere from dozens to hundreds of onlookers awaiting him, and, on occasion, his annoyance is visible as he escorts his wife in stony silence to their waiting car.

Johnson is well aware the other presidents have avoided Sunday crowd scenes by having family services conducted by visiting pastors in the privacy of the White House or wherever the first family may be on the sabbath.

Against this historic background, Johnson has been following this practice on occasional Sundays. On one recent Sunday at Camp David, he instructed one of his staff members whose father was a clergyman to compose a sermon and read it to members of the Johnson family and friends.

On another Sunday, there were private prayers at the Texas ranch home instead of the usual motorcade to a nearby church.

Aside from church attendance, the Chief Executive is well exposed to religious influence. One of his chief assistants on the White House staff, Bill D. Moyers, is an ordained Baptist minister.

The President usually says grace before meals in the White House or at home and, on some occasions, he will ask Moyers or another member of the staff to say the blessing.

There is a story in White House staff circles that shows the President's personal approach to religion and prayers.

Moyers was saying grace in a soft voice before lunch at the White House.

"Speak up, Bill, I can't hear you," Johnson said.

"I wasn't speaking to you, sir," said Moyers respectfully.

Methodist Counseling Program Helps Many

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Critics of the Methodist Church's pastoral care and counseling program say it substitutes the couch for the cross. But the program is reaching an ever-swelling stream of the troubled.

Counseling augments rather than competes with psychiatry, says the Rev. James E. Doty, director of the Indiana program, first of its kind.

Answering clerical and lay opposition in the church, Rev. Doty says: "If I can help people live better today, the hereafter will be a better experience also."

Rev. Doty, who has a Ph.D. in psychology but calls himself a minister first and a psychologist second, has directed the Indiana program since its inception in 1957. It has served as a model for programs in Ohio, the District of Columbia and elsewhere.

The program has three phases — working with ministers on their own problems, training ministers as counselors, and setting up and supervising counseling centers.

It came into being because Rev. Richard C. Raines, Methodist bishop of Indiana, and his district superintendents felt that their ministers were reluctant to discuss some problems with them and needed a counselor who was not the boss. The first phase was the result. The others followed.

The centers are the phase the public knows. Many persons with problems go to their own minister, but some are reluctant to do so. At a center they are able to talk with a minister from another church.

One center in Indiana in a five-year period devoted 2,682 hours to 697 cases — almost four hours per case — involving 893 persons. There were 365 Methodists among those involved, and the next largest number—102—were persons with no religious affiliation.

Counseling ministers learn their psychology by experience and also by training in special centers such as general hospitals, mental hospitals and psychiatric clinics.

They have the help of experts in a variety of fields. They meet regularly with center committees that include lawyers, teachers, sociologists and others.

The centers accept contributions, but charge no fees.

Youth Group To Present Unusual Fare

An unusual religious program will be put on in San Rafael tomorrow by the youth group of Christ Episcopal Church of Sausalito.

The group will present a two-act play, The Community, by Malcolm Boyd, who has been called the Beatnik Priest. The play deals with the role of the traditional church in the modern world.

Folk music, poetry, expressive dance and jazz will also be in the program.

Publicist Lin Leon said the purpose of the presentations is to provide a forum for ideas and feelings for communication between young people and adults of the community. The show is entitled "Gesture of Creation."

The program will begin at 8 p.m. at the Unitarian-Universalist Church of Marin, 240 Channing Way. Proceeds will go to the Marin City Recreation Center for repairs.

Missionary Work Among Gypsies To Be Described

Evangelization of American gypsies will be the subject of a 7 p.m. meeting tomorrow at Southern Marin Assembly of God, Mill Valley.

Rev. Harold D. Champlin of Redwood City, San Mateo County, who is U. S. co-ordinator of Assembly of God gypsy work, will describe attempts to reach the two million gypsies in America.

This is the second year of this work, according to Rev. Champlin. He said it began in Europe, where converts now number more than 6,000.

Ninety per cent of American gypsies travel and few have public school benefits. They have been ignored by churches in general for generations, Rev. Champlin maintains.

Last year the Assembly of God took an organizational interest in them and Rev. Champlin has ministered to more than 2,000 gypsies last year, with 100 conversions taking place. There are now 12 Assembly of God ministers active in gypsy work in the U. S.

Colored slides will be shown at tomorrow's meeting, curios displayed, and Mrs. Champlin will wear a gypsy costume given to her by European gypsies, said Rev. J. C. Walton, pastor, Assembly of God, Mill Valley.

Varied Beliefs Theme Of Book By UPI Writer

United Press International columnist Louis Cassels, a regular contributor to the Independent-Journal's church page, is often asked by his readers to explain the difference between their own religious beliefs and those of their neighbors.

He has rounded up the answers and put them in a book, called What's The Difference? and published by Doubleday.

Cassels warns that his book is not objective ". . . if by objective you understand that the author is neutral, impartial, or indifferent. I do not see how it is possible for anyone to be truly neutral about religion; some of the most viciously slanted books I've ever read were written by people who make a great noise about their 'objectivity.'"

Cassels maintains that everyone, even if he claims to be an unbeliever, has a religion of some kind.

Ex-Pastor Visits

Guest minister at First Baptist Church of San Anselmo, Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Sais Avenue at both the 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. services tomorrow will be former pastor Rev. Harry Guckert, who is now retired in Paradise, Butte County.

St. Raphael's Sets Parish Picnic Date

St. Raphael's Roman Catholic parish will hold its annual picnic Sunday, Sept. 12, at St. Peter Chanel Seminary grounds, Belle and Grand Avenues, San Rafael.

Among the entertainment planned are swimming, races, games, pony rides and a teen dance. Those who attend may bring their own lunch or purchase one at the picnic.

Lutherans In Novato Lose Rev. Winter

Rev. Ole Winter has resigned as pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato to assume pastorship of St. Peter Lutheran Church in Santa Ana, Orange County.

The Novato congregation, numbering about 600, accepted Rev. Winter's resignation at a recent meeting and held a farewell dinner for him.

Rev. Winter left Novato early this week for his new post. A new Good Shepherd pastor is expected in about two months. Meanwhile, student assistant John Hartzog is filling the vacancy.

Hartzog, 26, arrived recently in Novato to begin a year of internship at Good Shepherd in preparation for his ordination. He is a native of Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, and a graduate of St. Olaf College and Luther Theological Seminary, both in St. Paul, Minn.

Faith Baptists To Set Up New Novato Church

The Faith Baptist Church, an independent Baptist denomination, will begin conducting services in Novato on Sept. 12.

Rev. James D. Buerer has left the assistant pastorship of Grace Baptist Church in Sonoma, Sonoma County, to become pastor of the new congregation.

Services will be held in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Building on Sweetser Avenue. Sunday school for all family members will begin at 9:45 a.m., followed immediately by morning worship at 11 a.m. Sunday evening fellowship hours will begin at 7 p.m. and Bible study and prayer meetings will be held Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. at the parsonage, 294 Sunset Parkway.

Rev. Buerer is a graduate of Bob Jones University, Greenville, S. C., and also studied at the Bible Institute of Los Angeles and Western Baptist Bible College, El Cerrito, Contra Costa County. He is married and has seven children.

Marin Youth Enlists In The Red Cross

ON A HILLSIDE with the mixed architecture of the city of Safi, Morocco, in the background, Peace Corps member Orville F. Grimes Jr. of San Rafael relaxes from his teaching duties. The young Marinite is finding his stay in the Arabic country a fascinating and challenging experience.

Marinite In Morocco

Young Orville Grimes Jr. Finds His Peace Corps Assignment Fascinating

By DON KEOWN

A young Marin man is finding his Peace Corps teaching assignment in Morocco a fascinating experience.

Writes Orville F. Grimes Jr., 22, from Safi, a Moroccan coastal city of some 80,000 people:

"Teaching in Morocco is fascinating not only because the students are (in general) a pleasure to teach, but also because the whole system is entirely unpredictable.

"ONE DAY THE center on the school basketball team brings a sheep to practice; the next the vice-principal fights it out behind the office with an unruly student; the next you arrive in the morning to find the whole lycee (school) closed up tight in honor of some Muslim holiday they forgot to tell you about."

Grimes, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Orville F. Grimes Sr. of 1660 Grand Avenue, San Rafael, is San Francisco-born, a fifth generation California native son. He attended Old Mill School in Mill Valley, E Street and Davidson schools in San Rafael, and graduated from San Rafael High School in 1960.

At the University of California, he majored in political science and French, and spent his junior year at Bordeaux, France, where U.C. had just opened its first campus abroad.

HE GRADUATED Phi Beta Kappa with honors in French from the University of California in 1964.

He received a three-year scholarship to Yale Graduate School in political science, but turned it down in favor of Peace Corps service.

Following orientation courses at Princeton University and a brief period of practice teaching at Quebec, he and 30 other Peace Corps volunteers were flown to Rabat, Morocco, in September of 1964 for their corps assignments.

GRIMES WRITES that the lycee to which he is assigned "is roughly equivalent to a high school, with students entering at about 12 or 13 and leaving, at least in theory, when they are 17 or 18. Mine are all supposedly from 15 to 19, although some are definitely older than they will admit."

Young Grimes is teaching special conversational classes for first and second year English students.

"To facilitate matters," he relates, "the administration has divided my class in two, which means that I have only 20 students to cope with instead of the usual 40 or more. Thanks to this arrangement, the discipline problem, a constant one in most Moroccan schools, has been virtually non-existent in my classes.

"WITH 20 I can keep the whispering and snickering down to a reasonable minimum; with twice that number, it would be well nigh impossible."

Generalizations about Moroccan students are hazardous, Grimes writes.

"Some are extremely intelligent, some outrageously stupid. Some are very good athletes, others have trouble getting out of a classroom without knocking over a desk.

"Most, well aware of the desirability of learning some English and, more importantly, the absolute necessity of mastering French, are good in foreign languages—more so than American students the same age.

"FOR THESE kids, their eagerness to learn English is matched only by their propensity to clown around."

Grimes tells how during the first few weeks of the term "before things calmed down a bit" his students would immediately shout out any English word they happened to think of at the particular moment when he attempted to conduct verbal exercises.

"Thus, when I asked Mustapha what time it was, Ahmed would loudly and repeatedly supply his own answer. 'Chewing gum'."

DETENTION brought some relief from that practice, the young teacher says.

"Now, when some one has trouble with a question, his neighbors whisper the 'correct' answer as surreptitiously as possible, believing themselves terribly clever. And they act shocked and hurt when I tell them to shut up."

Foreign language instruction in Morocco begins in the elementary school level, Grimes reports. There, in spite of an Arabization program designed gradually to replace French with Arabic, students begin learning the former at no more than 8 or 9.

"THE STUDY OF French continues through the six years of

The Peace Corps In Morocco

Young Marinite Teaches English And Coaches

THIS IS THE LYCEE or school where Orville Grimes Jr. is teaching young Moroccans under Peace Corps auspices. The students are seen in the courtyard of their school, with the debris on the right the result of an expansion program to keep pace with the young country's growing interest in education.

elementary school, and is intensive enough so that a young educated Moroccan of 18 or 19 is virtually bilingual."

French is the business language of Morocco. "English plays no more than a supporting role," Grimes says. "Its practical application at least for the foreseeable future, will be limited to the areas of international commerce and tourism. But both are of growing importance in Morocco."

Grimes notes that in those two fields, it is a speaking knowledge of English, not reading and writing of the language, that counts, thus pointing up the value of his own course.

IN ADDITION to his English teaching duties, Grimes has coached volleyball and track and field.

"Surprisingly, many of my best students also turned out to be our best athletes," he says.

Describing Moroccan sports, he writes: "Besides volleyball, basketball, rugby, field handball (a wild game somewhat resembling basketball except for the fact that you score points by throwing the ball into a net-goal guarded by a goalie), and, of course, football (soccer) are practiced in the fall, with track and field taking over in the spring."

SOCCER IS by far the most popular Moroccan sport, he says. "You give a round ball, any size, to a group of Moroccan youngsters, and they'll be happy for the rest of the day, just kicking it around."

"This is not to say that other sports are not popular," he adds. "But they sometimes seem to be no more than poor substitutes for the Moroccans' real love, soccer."

Individual performances in student sports are generally of a high quality, Grimes reports. But team effort is something else.

"TEAMWORK and sportsmanship as we know them are often lacking," he explains. "After a bad play, a kid is apt to be chewed out by his teammates, eager to tell him what he should have done.

"Team effort suffers, of course. It must be remembered, though, that such remarks are accepted here as a matter of course. Once said, they are quickly forgotten. Foreigners participating in Moroccan sports, as I did on Safi's field handball team, must learn to roll with the verbal punches from their teammates."

Over the Moroccan student, Grimes says, often hovers the possibility that he may have to leave school at any time because of lack of money.

"INTELLIGENT, talented kids, who are incidentally poor, may find higher education effectively closed to them. They may have to drop out of the lycee to help support their families."

There is no easy solution to this problem, Grimes says. "Considering the situation it inherited in 1956 when the country gained its independence, the Moroccan government has made tremendous strides in providing at least some education for all.

"It is well aware of student difficulties and is doing its best to cope with them. But it goes without saying that only time, constant effort and money will provide Moroccan students with the higher education they need and deserve."

IN THE meantime, Orville Grimes Jr. and his fellow teachers, both from the American Peace Corps ranks and from Morocco itself, are doing their best to see that the youth of the country derive maximum benefits from those years they can spend in the classrooms before financial difficulties force them to leave education.

The rewards for the teachers come in the eagerness of the students for learning, and in occasional flashes of brilliance by some of the abler scholars such as the young Moroccan poet Abderrahim Nmiss in Grimes' class.

Wrote Abderrahim in one of the poems that attracted his American teacher's attention:

"For my life and l'ttle children, I pain—
My children that tear like rain—
I can't help their weeping
Like a man can't help rain."

AND IN another poem:
"At night, when stars around the moon,
My children, 'round me, like chickens 'round a hen.
I cover them with my kindness, and then,
Let them sleep, and I don't know what will happen."

Young Moroccan poets of another decade, Orville Grimes hopes, will be writing poetry of a more hopeful note.

In the meantime, it is satisfaction enough that they are writing — and thinking. And sometimes in English.

ALL FOUR OF these books, among the first half dozen to be published by the new firm of Pisani Press of San Francisco, are the work in part or in toto of Marin residents. (Independent-Journal photo)

Gifted Marinites Have Found New Market For Their Talent

Marinites are finding a sympathetic reception for their book manuscripts and cartoons in a new San Francisco publishing house.

Pisani Press, founded as a book publishing division for the old commercial printing firm, Pisani Printing Co. of 485 Brannan Street, San Francisco, has produced six books to date.

And Marinites have been involved in five.

CURRENTLY attracting national attention is "The Original Old Radio Game," two of whose collaborators, Bill Shilling of Corte Madera and Mal Whyte of Mill Valley, are Marinites. Ed Callahan is the third man involved.

Sample questions: What was the name of Amos 'n' Andy's lodge? What motion picture actor originated the role of the biology teacher on "Our Miss Brooks"? Where did Dr. Christian reside?

Answers: Mystic Knights of the Sea; Jeff Chandler; River's End.

THE BOOKLET with its nostalgic appeal has received national magazine and television publicity.

First off the Pisani presses was "The Little Old Lady's San Francisco," a humor-cartoon booklet upon which Shilling, who is the publishing firm's public affairs director, collaborated with artist George Albertus of Mill Valley.

So well received was it that the Shilling-Albertus duo has followed it with further cartoon antics by their favorite character in "The Little Old Lady's USA."

Another cartoon book by Mike Slosberg of Tiburon, "Klan-destined," ridicules the Ku Klux Klan.

FINALLY, Shilling, along with cartoonist Dave Massing, had a hand in "What's Your Major?," a takeoff on the college bluebook.

The sixth Pisani book to date is "Ping" by San Francisco cartoonist Bill Bates.

Marinites associated with the Pisani books to date have all, with the exception of Shilling, been advertising people. And, so far, all the published work has been in the "non-book" category—cartoons, humor and the radio quiz.

BUT NEITHER is a fixed policy with the firm, Shilling says. "We are open to submissions from anyone."

He adds: "There is an untapped wealth of talent on the West Coast, many of whom live in Marin County. We hope to give people in this creative area an outlet by which we can market their wares."

Shilling, who spearheads the book-publishing phase of Pisani's operations, says the firm expects to publish regular manuscript books as well as the cartoon collections in which it has specialized to date.

"WE SIMPLY felt that the so-called 'non-books' offered us our most promising and most financially feasible means of breaking into the publishing field," he explains.

Shilling says the concern now has on hand material for about another 20 books.

"At least three of the most promising are the work of Marinites," he adds.

WHILE PISANI Press is a new operation, its parent, Pisani Printing & Publishing Co., was founded in the 1920s by the late Jack Pisani, who left the meat business to start all over again in the printing industry.

For a number of years the firm has printed programs for the San Francisco Opera and the San Francisco Symphony.

Mike Pisani, the present president of Pisani Printing & Publishing, is a Hillsborough resident. But production manager Richard Pisani is a San Rafael resident, and many of the firm's employees hail from Marin.

"IN FACT," says Mike Pisani, "I sometimes feel out of place among all these Marinites."

Which is not to say, he adds, that he would not welcome still more manuscripts and cartoon ideas from the talented people who live on the north side of the Golden Gate.

The Haydite Home Is Built Of Made In Marin Masonry

E. A. Pedroli, Marin masonry contractor, believes that increased use of masonry materials by builders results in more permanent beauty and lower upkeep for home owners.

To demonstrate that point, he has scheduled a series of masonry custom homes, the first of which has now been completed at Peacock Gap.

Principal material for the new home is Haydite Slump Block, a product of the McNear Co. of San Rafael, that proved ideally suited to the contemporary design turned out by Robert E. Eklund of Edward Hageman and Associates.

Frank Hanrahan was the general contractor, responsible for the quality construction.

Eklund's design features a harmonious blending of the indoors and outdoors on the Peacock site, blending well with the view of Swan Lagoon, and providing the occupants with valued privacy.

Entrance to the home is through a court and entry hall, the latter featuring yet another McNear product, Traz-Tile, an onyx terrazzo tile from a process of authentic Italian origin using precision Italian machinery.

It is, McNear officials say, superior to imported terrazzo from other than Italian sources.

The Haydite Slump Block has a resemblance to adobe that has given the Pedroli home a feeling of early California.

All the structural advantages of concrete block are maintained without the loss of that charm.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dechent of Sleepy Hollow purchased the new Haydite home soon after its completion.

The Tomales Story: Early Settlers Were Hardy People

Claim-Jumpers, Fire And Quake Did Not Stop Them For Long

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

In no other section of Marin did the early settlers encounter such hardships as those who first populated the northern portions of our land.

Not only were these hardy people faced with the usual problems of life in a new land, but they were also required to fight for many years to save their hard-won properties from fraudulent claims.

They battled fires which four times or more burned away the heart of their principal town.

And the earthquake of 1906 demolished their beautiful blue rock church — and my own grandfather's store in Tomales — as well as leveling a ranchhouse that resulted in several casualties.

IN SPITE OF this, Tomales faced and still faces the future bravely and cheerfully.

Those riding through the village of Tomales today seldom realize that in its heyday it ranked second only in importance, population and prosperity to San Rafael among all the towns of Marin County.

Schooners used to sail from San Francisco to the head of Tomales Bay, carrying produce and passengers to the busy port of Tomales. And the whistles of train locomotives, also transporting passengers and freight from Sausalito and other stations to Tomales, were also familiar sounds.

BUT BOTH trains and schooners have long since disappeared from the Tomales scene.

Tomales is especially dear to my heart because, when I was a small girl, I often visited there with my grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Franklin W. Holland. Their 14-room house and "family orchard" fronted on the main street of the town.

My grandparents and many of my other relatives lie buried in the cemetery near the little white church on a hilltop back of what was the family home.

ON A HILL on the other side of the village, my father, the late Frank Sargent Holland, and his sisters attended the one-room school.

The first recorded history of the area begins with the Mexican land grants.

Young Capt. Juan Padilla, who was made guardian of the northern trails by Gen. Mariano Vallejo, then commander of the northern frontier, was granted Rancho Bolsa de Tomales, five square leagues, by Gov. Pio Pico in 1845. The eastern boundary was designated as Dos Piedros (Two Rocks). The young captain also received another large grant, El Roblar de la Miseria in Sonoma, where he had his establishment.

THE CAPTAIN, who had fought bravely to keep the flag of Mexico flying at Sonoma, was saddened first by the Bear Flag and then the Stars and Stripes flying there. So he left that land and took his little family to Southern California.

Adjoining the Bolsa de Tomales grant was the Blucher Rancho, six square leagues — extending into Sonoma County. The land was granted to Capt. Jean Vioget, a Swiss surveyor and sailor, in 1844.

CAPT. STEPHEN Smith bought the Blucher tract from Vioget for $1,500. When Captain Smith died in 1855, it was learned he had given three of six square leagues to 14 of his heirs and mortgaged the other three square leagues to James Bowman.

Bowman could not sell the land because he did not have a clear title. When Bowman died, 128 settlers appointed a committee to act for them to obtain title from the widow. Mrs. Bowman received $125,000 for the land, and the name of Orton Hubbell, a North Marin rancher representing the committee, was enscribed on the new map of the rancho in place of the Smith heirs. That title clearance took 10 years of litigation. But to clear the title of lands on the Bolsa de Tomales rancho, the case had to be taken to the United States Supreme Court and a special act of Congress had to be passed after many years.

The early settlers of Northern Marin, finding no one on the land, believed it to be government property, and fenced in their claims. They built substantial houses and engaged in ranching.

THE FIRST English-speaking white men settling in Tomales were John Keys and Alexander Noble who had rented land near Bodega from Capt. Stephen Smith and grew potatoes—Bodega reds. They had such a good crop they bought a small schooner, the Spray, to ship their produce to San Francisco.

Keys, who was born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, in 1824, had come to San Francisco in 1849 and staked his claim in Tomales in 1850.

Keys and Noble built a small cabin in September of 1850. The former had great plans for his land. He laid out an embarcadero with docks, a hotel and other places of business at the head of Tomales Bay, in what was called Keysport and later Lower Town in Tomales.

NOBLE REMAINED only a few years, but Keys, whose wife, Katherine, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Miller who had a large ranch across the highway from St. Vincent's School, remained in Tomales and died there Aug. 14, 1873. Their son, the late James Keys, was a prominent San Rafael lawyer.

For many years John Keys carried on a mercantile trade between Tomales and San Francisco. Later he sold this business, but continued in the shipping business until his death.

The Tomales area attracted many settlers. Its soil was rich and the fog which blew in from the bay and ocean kept the ground moist, providing excellent pasturage for horses and cows.

THE LATE A. B. (Bray) Dickinson of Tomales, whose history of the area will be published soon, wrote: "Another man who was largely instrumental in shaping the destinies of the township and who left a distinct impression of his character on the future community, was Warren Dutton."

The life story of Warren Dutton reads like an Horatio Alger novel. The eldest of a family of eight, whose birth date was October 10, 1823, he left his home in Ohio at the age of 14 to make his way, unassisted, in the world. In California he became rated a multi-millionaire.

He had extensive land holdings in Tomales, San Francisco and near Sacramento. There he established Dutton's Landing on the river. He held several county offices and served as a representative from the Third Congressional District.

YOUNG WARREN worked as a clerk in stores and saved enough money to open a store of his own in Indiana. Stricken by a fever, he had to sell his business. But as soon as he recovered, he went to New York. There with 41 others he bought the brig, Sarah McFarland, loaded her with merchandise and sailed on Jan. 30, 1849, around Cape Horn to San Francisco.

On Aug. 1, 1849, the Sarah McFarland came to anchor in San Francisco. Dutton and his shipmates rushed to the mines but all Dutton had after two years of hard labor were calluses on his hands.

WHEN WARREN Dutton arrived in Tomales on Aug. 20, 1852, he decided this would be the place which would be his home. Potatoes were bringing from 10 to 14 cents a pound on the San Francisco market, so he decided to grow them.

In 1854 he entered into partnership with John Keys. They started a store.

Tomales was a happy, ambitious community, which was shocked when news finally came through that the land commission had approved the claim of James D. Galbraith et al for the Bolsa de Tomales grant on April 11, 1854. At first the ranchers considered the claim blackmail, but before long they realized the seriousness of their position. A mass meeting was held in Tomales Sept. 6, 1854, and the settlers appointed a committee to secure testimony and do whatever else was necessary to protect their interests. But the United States District Court upheld the land commission's decision Dec. 1, 1854.

THE SETTLERS, many more of whom were coming into the township each year, contended the papers for the claim had been forged and that "professional witnesses" had perjured themselves. George W. Burbank was the head of eight men who organized themselves into a land league. Other settlers joined.

Jeremiah Clark of San Francisco, considered the best land lawyer available, was hired.

Clark and William Vanderbilt, who had come to Tomales in January of 1857 and who had large holdings there, were sent to Washington to present all the evidence for the settlers. Finally, in 1863, the Supreme Court rejected the Galbraith claim,

THE PRIDE OF TOMALES was this Catholic church of blue stone, completed in 1901 and described by the San Francisco press as "the most beautiful house of worship in the state." It was, however, to be demolished five years later by the great earthquake.

and declared Bolsa de Tomales "government land."

TO COMMEMORATE their victory, the joyous settlers staged a huge celebration April 2, 1863, on Keys' embarcadero. A cannon boomed to open the festivities, a band played and oratory filled the air.

However, the ranchers had more problems. Squatters rushed in to live on land they had not tilled and there was much more legal procedure ahead in order to obtain titles to their lands.

Again a delegation was sent to Washington to explain why legislation should be approved to ease the burden on the land holders. It was after this a special act of Congress, the Right of Pre-emption to certain settlers on the Rancho Bolsa de Tomales in the State of California, was passed.

THE LAND league had an accurate survey made and presented to the surveyor-general. After his approval each member of the land league was taxed about $14 an acre to receive a clear title to his land from the government.

All this long litigation did not halt the development of Tomales and its township. Large ranches produced milk, cheese, butter, wheat, oats and potatoes.

LARGE RANCHES were on the hills around Tomales and the ranchers built steep, winding graveled roads to their houses.

The Dutton-Keys partnership lasted three and a half years. Then Warren Dutton began development of the upper portion or Dutton Town in Tomales. The land was surveyed and divided into building lots and soon there was a good-sized community to which ranchers came once or twice a week to do their trading.

Dutton, who had schooners plying from Ocean Roar on Tomales Bay to San Francisco, opened a small frame store in Tomales. Then in 1864 he built a large stone building with iron shutters on the doors and windows. This was close to his home on the main street, and several hotels were built nearby. Dutton was joined by several members of his family, including his brother, Dr. George Dutton, a surgeon and physician, who had a drug store and office near the general store.

KEYSPORT ALSO developed rapidly. The American Hotel was built on the embarcadero, and there the Tomales-Petaluma stage arrived and departed. Louis Guldager came to Tomales in 1864 and had his home, blacksmith and carriage works across from the embarcadero.

The first white woman to live in Tomales township was Alice Clark, wife of Edward Clark. The Clarks had a large family and their children also reared many small ones so that at one time it seemed that almost everyone in the area was related directly or by marriage to the Clarks. Many younger generations of the family now live in the Bay Area.

My grandfather, Franklin W. Holland, came to California via the Isthmus of Panama in 1866 and went into business with Warren Dutton. My grandfather, educated in Boston, had served as assistant master of transportation during the Civil War. He married Julia Sargent of Chelsea, Mass., a descendant of Puritan stock, whose forebears had fought in the American Revolution, in February of 1866.

I HAVE TRIED to visualize what my grandmother's reactions were when she came to Tomales as a bride.

My grandfather had brought her to Tomales on a small schooner and took her to the Dutton home. Across the street were several saloons where ranch hands roistered until daylight when they jumped on their horses and clattered out of town in time for milking on the ranches.

However, there were many church goers, although few church buildings. Religious services were first held in private homes and schools.

John Keys gave the land for the Catholic Church (Church of the Assumption) on the main street of Tomales, and Warren Dutton was the donor of the land for the Protestant church on the hilltop back of his home. The Protestants of Tomales began services at the Two Rock Church, which was dedicated May 3, 1863, and in Bodega.

REV. ALEXANDER Fairbairn began ministry to Tomales in 1865. At a meeting of the Presbytery at the Two Rock Church, May 10, 1865, it was recommended that Reverend Fairbairn be named as a missionary at Tomales, Bodega and Duncan's Mills (in Sonoma County). This meant long rides on horseback for the minister.

By the spring of 1866 the Protestant Church was completed in Tomales at a cost of $4,000. Trustees were Warren Dutton, Thomas McCune, George W. Burbank and Robert Bailey.

The church was set for dedication on April 22, 1866. The grounds were cleaned of all rubbish which was burned in large piles. A high wind blew up and flames leaped to the little church. In a few minutes, the new structure was a heap of ashes.

WITH THE financial support of such men as Warren Dutton, work began on the second church building early in 1868. At a meeting of the Presbytery May 9, 1868, in Healdsburg, it was reported that three church buildings, in Santa Rosa, Bodega Corners and Tomales, would be completed in the summer.

Among those on the board of trustees of the church were Warren Dutton and George Burbank. The latter, a native of Massachusetts, came to Tomales Township in 1855. His large ranch bordered the Esterio San Antonio Laguna.

It was here his younger brother, Luther Burbank, the famed plant breeder and horticulturist, continued experiments he had begun in the East.

WHEN LUTHER Burbank went from Marin to Sonoma County in 1878, he bought four acres near Santa Rosa. His health had always been poor and he was so dedicated to his work he refused to commercialize on his "new creations," as he called them. Therefore, he received financial aid from his family, from Warren Dutton who bought 20,000 prune trees for him, and from many others.

Rev. Elton E. Shell, former pastor of the Tomales Presbyterian Church, wrote its history. He told how after the first church was burned my grandmother played her melodeon for the services which were held in private homes, and later, when the second church was completed, my grandfather carried the melodeon up the hill where my grandmother played for the congregational singing and the church choir.

In the meantime, the appearance of Tomales had changed. The embarcadero which John Keys had mapped ceased to be a landing place for schooners. The bay was filling in. The winter rains washed tons of mud off the plowed hillsides into the head of the bay, and Tomales, Ocean Roar and Blake's Landing were landlocked.

MOST OF THE new buildings were in Upper Town.

On the land which John Keys had given a Catholic Church was built. Rev. Louis Rossi, a French-Italian, was appointed the first pastor of the Tomales Parish, which included not only Tomales but Bodega, Occidental, Freestone, Monte Rio, Sebastopol, Santa Rosa and Healdsburg. Most of these were operated as missions of Tomales.

Young Father Rossi had no church or house when he first came to the Tomales Parish. He stayed with the hospitable Irish pioneer and early surveyor Jasper O'Farrell, who had been granted Canada de Jonive in Sonoma County. For the Tomales parishioners the priest said mass at the Clark home.

SOON CONSTRUCTION was started on the church. The contract price was $4,000. The builders were Peter Morrissey and Andrew Fisher.

The first child baptized in the church was Otto Gericke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Gericke, who had a 300 acre ranch near Tomales. Otto was born in 1860. Mrs. James Gericke, widow of another son, lives in a house on the home ranch which she leases for pasturage.

After the church was completed Father Rossi built a small rectory of four rooms. He also built several other churches including one at Bodega. His health impaired by his rigorous duties, Father Rossi had to retire. Many other pastors followed him.

TOMALES continued to thrive. Prosperous dairy ranches dotted the hillsides and valleys. The ranchers and their families came to the town to get supplies. The women shopped at the general stores to buy groceries and drygoods, the latter at a bit or two bits a yard. The men gathered to discuss politics and then would climb in the driver's seat of the wagons for the ride back home.

First financial blow to Tomales was the fire of 1877 when a block of the Upper Town was destroyed by fire.

The battles against flame were always losing ones. There was no fire department, water was scarce and men and women worked in an assembly line to save the remaining structures.

NEW LIFE came to Tomales with the building of the railroad, the North Pacific Coast, a narrow gauge line. Chinese workers had hacked a way for the road bed through rocky hills for tunnels. Many trestles were built over the canyons for the constantly curving line.

The road was first opened in January of 1875. The railroad had boat connections in Sausalito and San Quentin. The trains followed a winding route through Ross Valley, San Anselmo, along Paper Mill Creek to Point Reyes along the Tomales Bay shore, with stations in Marshall, Hamlet and Tomales. Later the road was extended into Sonoma County.

To celebrate the advent of the railroad, a big dinner was given in the warehouse Warren Dutton had built in Tomales.

SPECIAL TRAINS were run to Tomales for the opening celebration and people from all parts of California were seated for the feast at 300-foot-long tables. The railroad brought life blood to the Tomales area, which had been cut off from the outside world when schooners could not land at Jeremiah Ladd Blake's place, Ocean Roar or at Key's Embarcadero.

Jeremiah Blake, a native of New Hampshire, had come to Tomales Bay in 1853. He was the first saddler in the township. Later his place became a summer resort.

After Warren Dutton left Tomales with his wife, their son John, and daughter Carrie, to reside on California Street in San Francisco, my grandparents and their family occupied the 14-room house and my grandfather became the owner of the stone store Dutton had built.

SEVERAL OTHER stores were in business in Tomales. A. B. Dickinson's father owned one on the main street and the Cornett brothers had another.

Most of the hotels had bars and these did a lively business.

The Tomales Cheese Factory, established in 1875, when run at its full capacity, produced two and a half tons of cheese a day.

In August of 1878 a fire ravaged the main street of Tomales again. It was started in a hotel at the corner of Main and First streets and destroyed it, the Bank of Tomales, Dr. Dutton's drug store and office, a watchmaker's shop and a warehouse.

However, the school built on land given by Warren Dutton escaped the devastation. It was far enough away from the main part of the town to be out of reach of sparks.

MY GRANDFATHER was one of the trustees.

The school teachers generally lived in private homes. Most of the teachers were women but one man, Dr. Samuel Augustine, was long remembered. This was not only for his teaching ability (he later was county superintendent of schools as well as a San Rafael banker) but because his punishment of his pupils was so severe.

District schools were established near the town. Among the better known were Franklin Clark and Aurora.

One of the men who had a major part in bettering education for the youth of the county was Thomas J. Ables, who had come to Tomales Township in 1858. He was born in Guernsey County, Ohio, Jan. 28, 1835. He taught school in Ohio until 1857 when, in company with two uncles and his brother, Benjamin, he came to California in a covered wagon. He taught school in Sonoma County, and then he and his brother bought 200 acres of land in Tomales Township.

The Story Of Tomales Township

BENJAMIN took charge of the ranch and Thomas continued to teach. In 1860 he was elected superintendent of schools in Marin County.

A difficult task faced the superintendent. Up to this time the schools of the county had not been organized and had not drawn public money. During his year in office he brought the schools into unification and established a coordinated teaching system. His year's salary, set by the board of supervisors, was $300. County warrants were then only 90 cents on the dollar.

He was elected justice of the peace in 1865 and was elected to the State Assembly in 1867. In 1870 he was elected Marin County supervisor for District Three. This position he held for three years.

IN 1873 HE was again elected to the State Assembly. After his term was over, he became cashier of the Bank of Tomales to which office he was elected at the inaugural meeting of the directors of the bank in September of 1875.

There are so many pioneers of the Tomales Township who had an important part in the development of northern Marin, it is impossible to name all of them. However, it would not be right to end the biographical section without mentioning the Marshalls, whose name is perpetuated by the village on Tomales Bay.

Alexander Marshall and his two elder brothers, James and Hugh, migrated from Ireland in 1849 and went to Indiana. In 1854, Alexander, his wife and a younger brother started from Louisville, Ky., driving a herd of cattle and many horses across the plains and mountains to California. They went immediately to what became known as the Marshall Brothers Home Ranch. Two of the brothers, James and Samuel, had arrived there in 1852.

THE ALEXANDER Marshalls' first child, Emma Jane, who was born on the Marshall ranch in 1855, is believed to be the first white child born in the township.

Returning to the village of Tomales: Another terrible fire occurred there in the latter part of the 1890s. This time the eastern side of Main Street was reduced to ashes. Among the buildings destroyed were a livery stable, a butcher shop, drug store, hotel and several small cottages.

Again the rebuilding began and the town was bustling with activity.

ONE OF THE most enthusiastic residents of Tomales was not a pioneer but a man of the cloth, Rev. John Rogers, who became pastor of the Church of the Assumption in 1892. Father Rogers, who was born in County Wexford, Ireland, was educated and ordained in the Catholic priesthood in Dublin. He came to the United States in 1887.

HE WAS assistant pastor at the Church of the Holy Cross in San Francisco before he was assigned to Tomales. A tireless worker, he increased the number of parishioners to such an extent that an assistant pastor was required. This resulted in the building of a larger rectory, an eight-room house which cost $4,000.

Father Rogers also built the Catholic Church in Sebastopol in 1898 at a cost of $7,500. On property donated by Mrs. Jane Marshall, Father Rogers built the church on a hill overlooking the village of Marshall in 1902. Father Rogers was instrumental in building a church in Occidental in 1903 on land donated by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Asti.

By far the most ambitious project of Father Rogers was the construction of the new church in Tomales. The edifice was completed in 1901 and was dedicated in June of that year.

SAN FRANCISCO newspapers acclaimed the new Tomales church as "the most beautiful house of worship in the state." It was constructed entirely of stone, blue and buff. The high white marble altar was imported from Italy. Also of white marble were the side altars. The communion rail of white marble was supported by columns of California onyx. The niches for the Stations of the Cross had gold mosaic backgrounds. The stained glass windows were all made in Munich, Germany.

The little white church, overshadowed by its big successor, was used as a meeting place for church organizations and catechism classes.

Father Rogers was transferred from the Tomales parish in 1903 and made a monsignor in recognition of his outstanding work.

IN JUNE OF 1903 the town of Tomales was shocked and grieved when two persons were killed and a number injured in the wreck of Warren Dutton's funeral train.

He had died at his home in Dutton's Landing following a year's illness. The body was brought by boat to Sausalito where it was put on board a special train for the last journey to Tomales and burial in the cemetery by the Presbyterian Church which he had helped to build. Aboard the funeral train that Sunday were 60 passengers in all.

Following the funeral services, members of the family gathered at my grandparents' home. Some decided to stay and take the regular train back to Sausalito. As a result there was only one passenger car when the special train left Tomales for the return trip. Near Point Reyes the train plunged off a trestle.

Fatalities were Michael Kirk, 75, who had a large ranch near Tomales in the 1850s and who after his retirement lived in San Francisco, and Anton Roman, early San Francisco book publisher.

SERIOUSLY injured in the wreck were Judge F. M. Angellotti, Judge E. B. Mahon, Dr. W. J. Wickman (whose wife, the former Hettie Dutton, had remained in Tomales), Thomas Bonneau, James Tunstead and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Tucker.

The blame for the wreck was not fixed although it was said the train was traveling at excessive speed.

After the horror of the disaster had dissipated, life in Tomales resumed its normal course.

DANCES WERE held Saturday nights in the Town Hall on the upper part of Main Street. The building, constructed in 1874 by the Tomales Temperance Club at the cost of $1,400, had a stage for use of drama societies. After the temperance group was disbanded the building became the town hall. Church bazaars as well as dances were held there.

The dances lasted until dawn so that the ranch workers could enjoy the parties to the utmost. The town folk would wend their way through a dozen or more cows who slept on the grassy turf around the flagpole in the center of town.

SUNDAYS WERE the most enjoyable time of the week for the ranchers and their families, who came to town in wagons, buggies or buckboards to attend religious services. Afterwards they would gather to visit and hear the latest news.

This happy way of life came to a tragic stop on April 18, 1906, when the earthquake, which leveled most of San Francisco, also ruined the main street of Tomales.

My grandfather's stone store, the beautiful stone Catholic church and the Bank of Tomales, were reduced to piles of rubble. Telephone lines were down and the railroad ceased operation because tracks were twisted and trestles thrown into gulches. The village was isolated and those who had relatives there had to go horseback to Tomales. Newspaper reports were fragmentary.

The Marin Journal, filled with accounts of the devastation in San Francisco, reported: "Tomales is a ruin. Catholic Church is a pile of rubbish, stores are torn down. Fifteen people lost their lives." Actually the only buildings toppled were stone or brick. A ranchhouse was destroyed, and several members of the family were injured, three fatally.

REV. JOSEPH Gleason was pastor of the Catholic Church when the earthquake struck. He reported to the archbishop that the stone church was utterly destroyed, the rectory wrecked and the old frame church thrown off its foundations.

In May, Father Gleason went East to raise money for the parish work. He left orders for repair of the little white church and the rectory. During his absence, Rev. Patrick Callopy took over his duties.

The church, which was to celebrate its 100th anniversary in August of 1960, was extensively redecorated by Rev. Aldo Grasso. The exterior now is much the same as when it was built, although the tall steeple has been taken down.

PERHAPS THE greatest blow of all to Tomales was the discontinuance of railroad service in 1930. The automobile is now the favorite method of transportation and as it is a short ride to Petaluma in Sonoma County, many of the ranchers trade there.

The young people of the area attend Tomales High School, built next to where the stone Catholic Church once stood. The main street of the town has several stores, but the Bank of Tomales is no more. In its place is the Tomales Branch of the Bank of America. The Presbyterian Church stands proudly on its hill overlooking the town.

However, it has little resemblance to the days when John Keys and Warren Dutton lived there with their families.

ANOTHER MAJOR fire caused vast destruction on May 24, 1920. The Independent reported: "Fire started in the Plank Hotel, owned by Silvio Piezzi, destroyed the United States Hotel, owned by Patrick Mulvaney, the William Tell House, owned by Antonio Matteri, the Bank of Tomales, Cornett Bros. store and warehouse, Johnson's saloon, William P. Fourcault's barber shop, a livery stable, Piezzi's garage, Arenander's blacksmith shop, the creamery station of the Western Meat Co. and the houses of Franklin W. Holland and John McPhillips.

This time there was no haste in rebuilding the town. The community had lost something of the vigor of its youth when hardy men battled for their land against heavy odds.

MOTOR SERVICE DRIVING is yet another means by which Marin youth contribute their time and skills to Red Cross. Here volunteer Robert Hamilton discusses the merits of the newly-purchased bus-van with George McKenzie, treasurer of the Marin chapter. His passenger is Red Cross volunteer Mrs. Joe Friedman. The van is used to transport wheelchair patients to clinics and hospitals.

PATIENT Mrs. Margaret York at Center Medical Convalescent Hospital receives some assistance with her scrapbook project from Barbara Nichols, an American Red Cross Junior Gray Lady. About 150 Marin teen-agers work under Red Cross auspices in rehabilitation and convalescent hospitals. All have received special training for their work with the patients.

RED CROSS VOLUNTEERS

A Summer Vacation Of Service

Ever wonder what teen-agers do during summer vacation?

In Marin more than 350 high school students volunteered this summer in American Red Cross youth programs throughout the county. They served in recreation programs, convalescent hospitals, leadership training programs and community services, giving a total of more than 20,000 hours of their "vacation" time.

EACH WEEK 27 teen-age members of Red Cross youth were driven to Sonoma State Hospital (by a teen-age motor service volunteer), where they assisted in patient recreation programs, entertainment, and dancing classes.

At the Marin Aid to Retarded Children day camp at Camp Lagunitas, 67 Red Cross youth volunteers assisted in swimming, games and recreation for the children.

Teen volunteers helped, too, at Marindale School for the physically handicapped, serving as teacher aides, recreation aides, physical therapy and occupational therapy aides, and assisting directors on field trips for the children. And they served as teacher aides and excursion aides in the county's summer school program of special education for the handicapped.

YOU COULD find them, too, in rehabilitation and convalescent hospitals, serving meals to patients and helping in recreation programs. About 150 of these specially trained teen-agers assisted staffs at Center Medical Convalescent Hospital, Marin Convalescent and Rehabilitation Hospital, Novato Manor, Terra Linda Valley Hospital and Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital.

Marin's many swimming programs also had the benefit of some 50 trained Red Cross youth who served as water safety aides at county pools where water safety and swimming classes were being conducted.

And back at the chapter headquarters in San Rafael, youth volunteers served as staff aides helping with typing and clerical duties.

ALL OF THESE young volunteers received special training before they were assigned to their respective jobs. Those assigned to hospitals are required to complete a Red Cross modified home nursing course, and those assisting in programs for the handicapped are required to have a current standard first aid certificate.

Teens serving as water safety aides must be holders of junior or senior life-saving certificates and have Red Cross water safety aide training.

All of the volunteers received special American Red Cross orientation courses.

IN ADDITION to serving their communities, 16 Red Cross Youth attended the organization's annual leadership development center at Glen Ellen, where they spent one week of their summer vacation learning about community service programs, leadership skills, group dynamics, and the objectives of the American Red Cross throughout the world.

Now, these 350 Marin teen-agers prepare to return to their regular high school classes throughout the county, after spending a busy summer filled with community service, rewarding experiences and a broadening of human needs and understanding.

A WATER SAFETY and swimming session at the day camp program conducted this summer by Marin Aid to Retarded Children Inc. found Red Cross youth water safety aides on the job to assist and entertain the children. The Red Cross teen-agers also helped in the recreational phase of the MARC program.

RECREATION AIDE David Black of the Marin Chapter, American Red Cross, helps entertain young Edward Bertsch at the Marindale School for the Handicapped.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

Some Bargain Discs That Carry A New Label From Vox Records

By JOHN SUNIER

I would introduce this batch of new releases by saying that Vox has entered the bargain-price market in the classics which has grown so important lately, were it not for the fact that they were already there with their highly-acclaimed "Vox Box" and "Vox Twin" sets.

The new sub-label is called "Turnabout," and is devoted to single lp's only, priced and packaged in an obvious aping of Nonesuch, the product of Elektra.

"Turnabout's" slogan is "The Best in Music, Recording, Performance, Presentation, Program Notes—at a price that all can afford." This is exactly what they have done.

The $2.50 list price is the same as Nonesuch, Music Guild, and some others.

The following lp's illustrate the wide variety of offerings on this new classical label:

VIVALDI: Concerto in D Minor for Viola D'amore and String Orchestra; Concerto in D Minor for Viola D'amore, Lute and String Orchestra; Concerto in C Major for Piccolo, String Orchestra and Cembalo; Concerto in A Minor for Piccolo, String Orchestra and Cembalo; Gunter Lemmen, Viola D'amore /Martin Linde, Piccolo/Wurttemberg Chamber Orchestra/ Jorg Faerber, conductor—Turnabout Stereo TV 34009S:

Maybe I'm lazy, but I've given up trying to sort out all the endless Vivaldi concerti from one another and just enjoy them for their varied and swinging melodies and rhythms. Yes, there are cataloging systems for Vivaldi too, but nobody seems to use them, so forget it.

All these are a delight, and the performances never sag or lag.

JOHANN HOFFMAN: Concerto for Mandolin and Orchestra in D Major; JOHANN N. HUMMEL: Concerto for Mandolin and Orchestra in G Major—Vienna Pro Musica/Vinzenz Hladky conductor — Turnabout Stereo TV 34003S:

First genuine stereo recordings of both these rarities. Aside from the couple of concerti by Vivaldi, one doesn't just run into concerti at every turn.

Hoffman is a very obscure composer about whom little is known. Hummel is a very well-known composer who is represented by several other compositions on lp. Both composers wrote for the mandolin-playing clique of Vienna and both created some gorgeous music notwithstanding the difficulties of writing for a solo instrument that cannot sustain tones. The mandolin players on both works are certainly virtuosi.

Don't miss this one!

ELECTRONIC MUSIC—LEWIN-RICHTER: Study No. 1; MIMAROGLU: Le Tombeau d'Edgar Poe; Intermezzo; Bowery Bum; AVNI: Vocalise; CARLOS: Variations for Flute and Electronic Sound; Dialogues for Piano and Two Loudspeakers—Turnabout Stereo TV 34004S:

In their first release, Turnabout is already making a turnabout!

From Baroque and Romantic music to avant-garde sound creations from the Columbia-Princeton Electronic Music Center.

Under the general direction of composer Vladimir Ussachevsky, composers explore the frontiers of electronic music production using the specialized equipment associated with banks of tape recorders. This includes signal generators, filters, reverberation gadgets, and the amazing RCA sound synthesizer which can (theoretically anyway) recreate the voice of Caruso singing songs Caruso never sang.

A very international group of young composers has been using these facilities recently. Four of them are represented on this stereodisc and all have important things to say using the new techniques.

The Turk Mimaroglu uses such extra-musical starting points as a Mallarme poem about Edgar A. Poe and a painting by Jean Dubuffet.

While far out, this music has a lot of personality and imagination in it, and doesn't affect one as computerized and mechanical as some electronic music often does. Stereo is again almost essential to make sense out of the sound spectrum that is unleashed here. This could be a very different sort of stereo demonstration record than the usual trash used for that purpose.

HER

her.
bridal veil, waterfall, golden streams fall at the sight of her hair.

her.
pitter-patter, blue pool, rain drops fall on her eyes.

her.
mouth settled on book's title, serious yet smiling.

her.
laughter's fantasy on roller skates,
rides in blue jeans, with sandaled feet walking softly on.

her.
the sea rushes to her.
the land beckons her to walk.
the skies await her smile.

her.
a wandering, blue-coated, silver-winged sparrow flies past my eyes.
never speaking, never heard.
she flies above the sky.

NIGHT THOUGHTS

I have watched stars fall in an August sky
And thought, "how very brief am I."
Awed by the great Sequoia tree
(That was tall and old last century)
I have felt how fleeting is my time
To give and love and be.
I'm not eternal, as the constant star
Or that stately, stalwart tree—
Right here, right now, is my time to live
And only I can be me.

A MOTHER'S MEMORIAL

I will leave a legacy to say that I've been here.
'Tis built of flesh and love and tears
(And likes to climb a tree!)
Always reach for the highest branch,
My little extension of me,
Open your soul and your heart to the skies
And explore what your mind will see.
(But, dear child, hang on to that tree!)

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

The last couple of articles discussed various aspects of a service department qualified to make adjustments and repairs on component type home music systems. The personnel aspect of a service department is also very important.

During the past few months, our service department has been undergoing changes. All installations and service are now managed by our Mr. Lee Aber who has recently joined our team. Mr. Aber has had a great deal of experience with custom installations, design and layout of custom installations, precise alignment of delicate component circuits, repairs in all phases of components—record changers—tape recorders—speaker systems, and intercommunication and industrial audio. For many years, Mr. Aber was a member of a reputable custom audio firm in the East Bay.

Under our new management policies, every effort will be made to keep each of our customers informed as to the progress of any of their units that may be in our shop. Parts that may not be in our stock will be ordered quickly to insure prompt servicing of the customer's component. All units will be processed through our shop in the order received.

Two major classes of service will be available from our service department. One class of service will be for the repair of the particular failure that has occurred. The second class of service will be for the repair of the particular failure, plus complete laboratory analysis, adjustment, and alignment of each individual component to make them perform at their best. As tubes age and parts are heated and cooled from numerous switchings "on and off" through the years, the performance of a unit deteriates. Since deterioration is gradual, the user rarely notices any change until a part actually fails. Periodic check-up will insure that the units perform at their best.

Mr. Aber has as his able assistant, Mr. Rich DeLew who has been with us for several years while attending college. Rich is with us full time during the summer months, and on his off-school days during the academic season.

Unfortunately, the cost of quality service is an expense that most don't look forward to; but, to own Rolls Royce type music components and not to give them the proper care they deserve is a terrible waste of listening enjoyment for the entire family.

History And Analysis Of Mind-Care Cause

By DON KEOWN

"The Positive Thinkers" is a serious and erudite study by Donald Meyer, UCLA professor of American history, of the mind-cure, self-improvement movement in America.

Books advising Americans on how to attain health, wealth and personal power through various popular psychologies and religious philosophies have crowded the shelves of bookstores and enjoyed immense sales. Theological and secular movements have been founded on that base and have flourished. Men and women have become influential national and world figures because of doctrines they have advocated.

Dr. Meyer does two things. He gives us a history of this crusade, and he attempts to find the reasons for its appeal.

Meyer describes his book as "a study of the American quest for health, wealth and personal power from Mary Baker Eddy to Norman Vincent Peale." Actually, he begins with predecessors of Mrs. Eddy including Henry James whose beliefs, he asserts, were misconstrued by those who adopted them as the foundation for their own programs. And he continues past Peale to yet more recent exponents of the miracles of positive thinking.

The history of the movement, Meyer makes clear, has been no straight line. There have been many twistings and turnings, about-faces and off-shoots from the mainstream.

The appeal, Meyer seems to think, lies in the void left by the failure of other institutions and movements—the churches, the medical profession, business, etc.—to satisfy the needs of many of us. Into the resulting vacuum, the positive thinkers moved.

They found especially fertile fields for mind-cure and self-improvement theories among middle class females, hard put for a meaning in life and plagued by neuroses, and among anxiety-ridden males including today's organization man, eager for an approach to life that restores something of his individuality.

The resulting withdrawal from the social scene is one of the dangers of this approach, Dr. Meyer indicates.

But the writer is interested neither in debunking nor defending. He is interested in understanding. His subject is a complex and diverse one. He has prepared himself well by an immense amount of reading in the field, and some careful thought. The resulting probe is deep and revealing. But the book is not intended for easy, rapid reading in the manner of Vance Packard's exposes.

THE POSITIVE THINKERS by Donald Meyer, Doubleday 356 pages, $4.95.

YOU UNLIMITED by Norman S. Lunde, Dodd, Mead and Co., 173 pages, $3.50.

NEVER STEP ON A RAINBOW by Winifred Wolfe, Harper & Row, 244 pages, $4.95.

THAT THE positive thinking school is very much still with us is indicated by two just published books in the field.

"Instantaneous Healing" by Harry Douglas Smith, whose Church of Life is located in Hollywood, deals largely with health and spiritual curing. The person who has adequately mastered this technique has no need for other "medicine," Smith claims, although he advises his readers to make use of the physician and pharmacy until he has attained that stage.

"You Unlimited" by Norman S. Lunde of the Church of Religious Science at Miami covers a broader area, putting forth his "natural laws" that promise prosperity, contentment, success and love as well as health.

They are excellent examples of the very kind of religio-psychiatric works of the Norman Vincent Peale persuasion discussed at length by Dr. Meyer in his book.

A SUMMER publishing season that has been more than usually dull, particularly in regards to new fiction, has suddenly come to life in its closing weeks with a spate of interesting novels, several of which have already been reviewed on these pages.

"Never Step on a Rainbow" by Winifred Wolfe is yet another of these books by young writers that have a curiosity appeal that is perhaps in excess of their literary value.

The dustjacket describes the novel as "a quiet nightmare," and in that somewhat eerie contradiction lies the almost hypnotic fascination of the story.

Superficially, Jenny, exotic dancer in second-rate nightclubs, seems an earthy and self-sufficient young woman. But it is apparent from the outset that she is anything but that. Somewhere within her character there are fatal flaws that cause her to maintain her residence in a sordid rooming house, despite her antipathy for her avaricious landlady and for the fortune-teller who also makes her home there. Nor is she able to break with a charming but obviously weak and wayward husband.

But most forboding of all is the mixture of fear and fascination that she feels for the strange roomer next door — the bearded artist, who is black-skinned and who has a mystery in his past.

Miss Wolfe has written a study of superstition and suggestability, and their corrosive effects upon the human mind. The reader may sometimes share our own impatience with the pace of the book and with the self destructive bent of the heroine. But we suspect that, just as we did, they will also read on, intrigued to the end which, unfortunately, is a bit too predictable and thus adds a final note of letdown for the reader.

It is easy to fault Miss Wolfe's novel. And yet, it is not easy to forget it.

WINIFRED WOLFE is the author of "Never Step on a Rainbow," a new psychological novel published by Harper & Row.

THE SEPTEMBER list of Fawcett Gold Medal paperback originals includes for gridiron fans the "1965 Official Pro Football Almanac," put together by Will Wise for the third straight year and selling for 60 cents. It contains complete dossier and statistical information on the two major pro football leagues.

WITH SALES already approaching the seven and a half million mark, 12 of the 21 titles in Edward S. Aarons' "Assignment" series of the adventures of CIA agent Sam Durell are going to press again this month. Fawcett is the publisher under its Gold Medal original label.

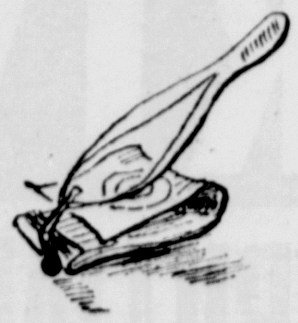
Sleuths & Suspense

A CARIBBEAN MYSTERY by Agatha Christie, Dodd, Mead & Co., 245 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.



Since her novels are invariably superb, a review of a new Agatha Christie "who-dun-it" is always somewhat superfluous, except to serve as a notice to her legion of admirers that yet another mystery by their favorite is awaiting them at the bookstore.

And perhaps, as well, to satisfy their curiosity as to just which of her sleuths—Hercule Poirot, Miss Marple, et al—she has chosen to spotlight this time.

Well, in "A Carribbean Mystery" it is wonderful Miss Marple. She is splendid as always when, while vacationing on a West Indies resort island, she learns that one of her apparently so respectable companions is a murderer. Before he can be more specific and name the killer, her informant is himself slain. Two more deaths follow before Miss Marple, aided by an irrascible multi-millionaire, finally brings the culprit to justice.

Agatha Christie writes with such disarming ease and simplicity that we sometimes fear unwary readers do not fully appreciate her narrative talents. But the truth is that she is one of our finest authors in any genre. And the enjoyment of reading one of her books (although this is short of her best) is one of those pleasurable experiences of life that never diminish in their delight.

SOME NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

Some new books for the juniors:

Big and special is "The Giant Nursery Book of Travel Fun" by George Zaffo (Doubleday, $3.95). Through the pages of this king-sized volume for tots up to 6, the little ones are taken along on a train, an airplane, a bus and a boat. There's all the fun and excitement of travel, with Zaffo's pictures, some in color, some not, adding an additional touch of festivity. Certain to be one of the outstanding books of the season for the nursery school set.

The talented Marin husband-and-wife team of illustrator Clement Hurd and writer Edith Thacher Hurd has collaborated again. "The So-So Cat" (Harper, $2.95) is a charming related and pictured tale about a cat that belongs to a witch and therefore has a problem. His unusual mistress is forever changing him into a rat. How the cat solves that problem should delight the 5, 6, 7 and 8-year-olds. Illustrations are woodcuts, appropriately dark and moody. Especially appropriate for the coming Halloween season.

For the tinier ones, talented Tony Palazzo has provided a beautifully illustrated edition of 23rd Psalm, so beloved by children. "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (Walck, $3.75) makes use of animals to help illustrate the Biblical message. It is the kind of book that many a youngster will adopt as his special favorite.

Little girls will enjoy "Amanda Remembers" (Harper, $3.50) by Robert Kraus. A "hold in the hands" book for children 4 to 6, it tells about Amanda whose mother has unthinkingly discarded the old doll and toy dog she thought worn out. But Amanda misses them terribly, recalling their good times together. There's a happy ending. Kraus' pictures are in soft pastel colors, suited to the tender tone of his story.

The Little League crowd will get a boot out of "The Baseball Trick" by Scott Corbett (Little, Brown, $3.25). The Panthers are in trouble. Star pitcher Fenton is in a slump, and there's a big game coming up with the Wildcats. Fenton looks to an unusual source for help. Paul Galdone provides the kind of drawings that boys like to back up an exciting, fast-paced story.

"The Men Behind the Astronauts" by Wayne Hyde, (Dodd, Meade, $3.50) is the story of the men and women behind the scenes—the people who actually build the spacecraft, test each part, man the tracking stations, make up the recovery teams. Fully illustrated with official NASA photographs, the young reader is shown that it is the teamwork of the many whose names never make the headlines, as well as the astronauts themselves, that will get us to the moon, to Mars, to deepest space.

"The Deadliest Weapon" by Ben Masselink (Little, Brown, $3.75) gets its title from Gen. John Pershing's remark that "the deadliest weapon in the world is a United States Marine and his rifle." Here is that Marine, in the person of Paul Dean, a PR sergeant in Headquarters and Service Company, and all the others who landed on the island of Engebi as part of the first big push toward Japan during the war in the Pacific. It is a good answer to the question of what combat experience is really like.

"The Ghost in the Noonday Sun" by Sid Fleischman (Little, Brown, $3.95), with illustrations by Warren Chappell is a tale of treachery and intrigue — told with a sense of humor—about a young boy who is shanghaied aboard the pirate ship Bloody Molly. Author Fleischman has created here a genuine boy who becomes an inimitable hero.

"The Iron Arm of Michael Glenn" by Robert C. Lee (Little, Brown, $3.75) is illustrated by Al Fiorentino and is the extraordinary story of 12-year-old Michael Glenn, possessor of "the strongest left arm in the world." How Mike managed to keep his new strength a secret and what happened when he pitched his first game of the season for the Pirates, Spring Valley's Little League baseball team, will delight the young reader, especially boys interested in baseball.

"TAKE THE DOG to the kennel, pack your bags," and you're ready to travel through the pages of "The Giant Nursery Book of Travel Fun" in which artist-author George J. Zaffo guides his small readers on rides aboard a boat, a bus, a train and a plane.

German Realist

ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE by Heinrich Boll, McGraw-Hill, 148 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Prominent among European writers today is Heinrich Boll, whose "Billiards At Half-Past Nine" and "The Clown" won instant acclaim.

His new book, a pair of novellas, will not disappoint his audience. Set in Germany at the time of World War II, they both deal with the impact of that war on a thoughtful German. But Boll's prowess reaches far beyond national borders. His probing of the human condition casts sparks that light up life all around us.

Inevitably, his work has been compared to that of his countryman, Gunter Grass, whose work is also dazzling with immediacy and vitality. While both German writers bring a wild humor and fresh flights of irony to the printed page, Boll is not primarily a satirist. He is a realist, who focuses closely on the existing scene by deft juxtapositions of fragments of experience and emotion that catch in the act, so to speak, the living moments of his characters.

Moving swiftly from one level of time and feeling to another, "Absent Without Leave" is the story of Wilhelm, who deals with his incomprehensible world, in war or peace, by being absent without leave as often as he can manage. He has lost much in the war, including any workable reason for living, and post-war life proves to be equally barren.

As he watches his son-in-law swindle him out of his business, he welcomes the time when he will lose everything (save the mother-in-law he loves) and be totally cut loose from life. Yet his narrative is full of wit and a tender appreciation of the joys of living.

"Enter and Exit" is in two parts, the beginning and the ending of the war for an aware young German soldier, who in fact is lost before the starting gun. Like Wilhelm, he would much prefer to absent himself from the war and all its implications. Such is Boll's command of his art that the whole horror of the war in between "Enter and Exit" becomes a clamoring reality by its very absence from the soldier's story.

1001 QUESTIONS ANSWERED ABOUT CHILD PSYCHOLOGY by Jeanne L. Rivoire, Dodd, Mead and Co., 241 pages, $6. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

In question and answer format, Dr. Jeanne L. Rivoire, psychologist and teacher at Pepperdine College, covers the problems that most frequently confront and puzzle the parent.

She begins with genetics, follows with the problems of the newborn infant, then the tot stage with the first appearance of understanding and language development, advises on play and creative activity, takes up emotional and personality development and concludes with social behavior matters.

Along the way, some of the many subjects she touches on are the left-handed child, the child who swears, child gangs, color preferences of infants, silent reading or oral reading, imaginary illnesses, superstition, movies, TV, etc.

The form of the book makes for easy reading and for convenient consultation. And Dr. Rivoire speaks with the authority earned by her impressive credentials.

LITTLE BOOK . . . BIG THOUGHTS by James M. Lawson, Wittman Printing Co., 36 pages, $1.95. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

The author states the quotations here in his "Little Book" have enriched and encouraged his journey through life. So he offers this scrapbook of "gems of thought" taken from many sources . . . Shakespeare, Ben Hecht, Christ Jesus, Mary Baker Eddy, among others, jumbled together with not a few gems by the author himself.

Readers who are likewise uplifted by sayings and quotes will no doubt find Lawson's collection of value.

EXPLORING THE OCCULT by Douglas Hunt, Ballantine Books, 219 pages, paperback, 60 cents. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

This is the most lucid, rationally written book written for mass consumption, by a believer in the occult, that we've ever read.

Being for mass consumption, it has the common drawback of very sketchy notations as to source material. Nevertheless, it's well worth reading for its definitions and examples of spiritualism, telepathy, reincarnation, hypnosis, astrology and other fields of non-objective experience.

HANDBOOK OF PRACTICAL PUBLIC RELATIONS by Alexander B. Adams, Crowell, 327 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Price Hall.

Author Adams not only presents the mechanics of public relations as a profession, but also illustrates his subject with 318 pages of superior graphical communication.

In the opening paragraph of chapter 9, "A Few Facts About Printing," he says, "When you first read this rather technical chapter, don't try to master it item by item. Instead, go through it quickly. Then at some later date, re-read it. If you do this several times, you will have acquired most of the information you need."

This may be applied to the entire handbook.

Adams has been a vice president in public relations with the Mellon Bank, Pittsburgh, and the Bankers Trust Company, New York, but this rarified atmosphere has not led him to neglect advice and complete step-by-step instructions for the humblest beginner. Included are pictures, samples and references to make each major point easily understood.

Considerable and knowledgable instructions are given for profitable association with the working press and other periodical staffs as well as radio and TV.

Adams' newspaper background is most evident in his ability to completely delineate all recognized phases of public relations including speech writing and production of printed materials in this short volume.

This book should be required reading, at least once a year, for everyone in the trade.

"BEWARE OF SUN LOTIONS"

Summer is sun tan and baby lotion season, and these lotions can permanently stain clothing. But a professional drycleaner can remove these stains with ease if you get the garment to him soon enough, says the National Institute of Drycleaning.

The Institute reports that the discolorations become permanent when the oils in these lotions oxidize. Removal of the spillage before oxidation is the point to remember.

Planning Always Pays Off

Think Before You Start Your Planting

It pays to plan before you plant, according to the California Assn. of Nurserymen.

An intelligent planting, using the knowledge and experience of designers and plantsmen, can save time, money and a lot of headaches.

There are many ways to approach the job of installing a new garden or refurnishing an old one. All can be financed through your bank, or by means of a home improvement loan installment plan devised by your nurseryman. Here is what you may expect when you call him for advice:

IF YOUR project is a small one, chances are he will offer consultation on the site, for which he may charge a nominal fee based on the time involved. The nurseryman or his assistant will make a rough sketch on the premises showing the location of recommended trees and shrubs and the location of such features as walks and ornaments.

If the job involves removal of existing plants, he will indicate which are to come out, which stay, and what to use in place of the removed trees or shrubs.

Should the project require the landscaping of an entire property, he may decide to recommend a landscape architect (either independent or attached to the nursery). This involves outright purchase of a comprehensive plan, so that you can proceed with the planting at your option, or the nursery will give you an estimate including plan and planting should you wish to complete landscaping at once.

IN MODERN gardens there may be some paving, bricklaying or carpentry, in which case your nurseryman may wish to recommend a landscape contractor, who retains craftsmen as part of his staff. In this instance, the nurseryman usually is involved only with the plan and plants. The contractor does the planting and the construction.

When you decide to do your landscaping in stages, ask the nurseryman to keep a duplicate copy of the plan and planting list at the nursery. This makes it easier for both parties when choosing and picking up plants for planting.

There is no reason to discourage anyone with the urge to design and execute his own garden, but there is a reason to offer a word of caution — don't proceed without good background knowledge of plants and planting!

IF YOU don't have it, your nurseryman does.

Good background knowledge is available. There are many good texts available. The one usually recommended in California is the Sunset Western Garden Book, with satellite publications in such specialties as roses, camellias and plants for "color."

Common amateur pitfalls involve the use of a tree or shrub too big or too small for the location, plants in sun that require shade, plants in shade that need sun, plants that require special soil conditions in untreated soil and tender plants in areas of low winter temperatures.

Ask your nurseryman to check over your plan before going ahead with the planting. He may be able to save you many headaches, as well as heartaches. He can give you more help if you call him ahead of your visit. Then he will be able to choose a day when he is not too busy and can spare the time for a thorough discussion.

GARDENERS' CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Keep azalea roots moist and add more peat moss or ground bark to maintain an even two-inch mulch. Feed plants now with the complete acid fertilizer your nurseryman recommends. Select some of the Belgian Indica, Glenn Dale and Kurume varieties that flower in fall. Most of these will put on another good flower display in spring.
- This is an excellent time to set out evergreen shrubs. Your local nurseryman has a large stock of polished evergreens such as camellias, hollies, viburnums and boxwood. The evergreen viburnums have many different landscape uses, some have extremely fragrant flowers, and all have handsome foliage.
- Set out small plants of calendulas (Pot Marigolds) now for bloom before Christmas. The Pacific Beauty strains have fine clear shades of yellows and oranges. They don't need rich soil.
- Prune out broken branches and deadwood from fruit trees now. They're easy to spot when the tree is in leaf. Continue to irrigate deeply at long, regular intervals.

When A Veneer Comes Loose

When the veneer of a table top or other piece of furniture comes loose, it can be successfully glued back to its base only if the old adhesive is removed.

Sometimes this is easier said than done.

It is especially difficult if the veneer is only slightly lifted from the surface and there is no apparent way to scrape off the old glue.

A METHOD sometimes recommended is to steam the veneer with a hot iron after first wetting the left-over cement. It may be that an expert can perform this task without damaging the veneer. Don't try it. There are any one of half a dozen reasons why it may cause trouble, entirely aside from the fact that it won't even work unless the glue is water-soluble.

The safest procedure is to lift the veneer very carefully to the point where there is some resistance.

Push a putty knife or spatula into the opening and scrape gently. If there still appears to be some hardened glue there, place sandpaper between the veneer and base and rub it back and forth as best you can, using the flat part of the putty knife to assist you. If the opening is very narrow, it may take you awhile to get results, but this is better than failing to make a good repair.

USE A TINY artist's brush, typewriter brush or something similar to clean out the area, then apply new glue with a wire or anything that will get between the veneer and the base. Place a cloth over the top of the repair and pile on books until the glue sets.

Just how long this will be depends on the type of glue used, so read the label on the container to determine the setting time. For safety's sake, allow even longer than is recommended.

Regluing the loose veneer may be part of an over-all finishing job.

In that event, removal of the old finish is best done before tackling the veneer. But putting on the new finish should come later. Perhaps a week should elapse between the veneer regluing and the application of the finishing material.

MOUNT EVEREST'S 29,028-foot pinnacle dominates the jagged panorama of the Himalayan mountain range in this artist's representation. The story of an American expedition's conquest of Mount Everest will be told in color in "Americans on Everest" on KPIX Friday at 7:30 p.m. It is a National Geographic Society presentation.

KING COUSIN Rick de Azevedo is one of the younger stars of "The King Family" musical series, seen Saturdays on ABC-TV and KGO. He's the son of Alyce King and step-son of actor Robert Clarke.

The Best On TV This Weekend—

Bay Area (KPIX, 11 a.m.).

"San Francisco Pageant" in a repeat tells the story of early American dirigibles including the Macon housed at Moffett Field (KPIX, 4 p.m.).

Sports fans can enjoy golf — the Oklahoma City Open (KTVU, 1:30 p.m.).

The Ronald Reagan-narrated documentary, "The Truth About Communism," will be shown again (KTVU, 7 p.m.).

The Boston Symphony program includes Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" with Inga Swenson as speaker, and Brahms' "Variations on Haydn" (KGO, 12:30 p.m.).

The original laboratories of Thomas Alva Edison at Menlo Park are visited on "Discovery" (KGO, noon).

"The Ed Sullivan Show" repeat bill is the one featuring ballet's Rudolf Nureyev and Margot Fonteyn, along with comic Alan King, singer Petula Clark and the West Point Glee Club (KPIX, 8 p.m.).

Gov. George Romney of Michigan will be the guest to be interviewed on "Meet the Press" with the questioning to deal largely with labor matters (KRON, 6 p.m.).

Barry Goldwater will discuss his political future and that of the Republican Party on "Issues and Answers" (KGO, 1:30 p.m.).

As for the movies, the delightful team of Cary Grant and Ingrid Bergman co-star in the comedy romance "Indiscreet" (KRON, 4 p.m.); Grant joins Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in the oldie, "Gunga Din" (KPIX, 11:35 p.m.); Jeanette MacDonald and Allen Jones sing and emote in the even older "The Firefly" (KGO, 2:30 p.m.); Kirk Douglas and Tony Curtis are the stars of the color spectacle "The Vikings" (KGO, 9 p.m.); Henry Fonda and Leslie Caron are the stars of the comedy "The Man Who Understood Women" (KRON, 11 p.m.);
